In 61kg, lifter Gururaja P (top), who had been training away from wife and family for more than a year, won a bronze at the Games on Saturday |P4

SANKET'S JOURNEY: TEA SHOP TO C'WEALTH GAMES PODIUM

FIROZ MIRZA @ Chennai

NOT long ago, Sanket was helping his father Mahadev Ananda Sargar in their tea, snacks and paan shop in Shinde Mala locality of Sangli (Maharashtra). Customers did know about Sanket's weightlifting stint then. They would have never thought the boy will one day win India their first medal at the 2022 Commonwealth Games in Birmingham. What made the achievement even more remarkable was how the 21-year-old lifter braved an elbow injury to clinch a 55kg silver medal at the NEC Hall 1 in Birmingham on Saturday.

"I'm in a lot of pain, please let me go fast," Sanket requested journalists after the medal ceremony. "I will go for an X-ray after the dope samples are collected." "I had come here for gold," he said. It was disheartening, too. Until the end of the snatch section, Sanket was in pole position. He had lifted 113kg in his third attempt, opening a considerable lead of six kilograms against his closest rival Aniq bin Kasdan from Malaysia, whose best attempt was 107kg. Gold was for him to take.

Sanket in his second attempt of 139kg hurt his elbow. "I heard a sound and suddenly there was a seething pain," he said after the medal.

"But I had to take the risk. I needed to overtake him." Kasdan, meanwhile, overtook Sanket with a 142kg lift. He would remain the leader until the end.

With unbearable pain, it was almost impossible for Sanket to lift his hand, let alone lift 139kg. In the end, he finished with a silver and a broken hand. P13

Delighted that our boy P. Gururaja from Karnataka wins bronze in men's weightlifting, 61kg category in #CommonwealthGames. The whole nation is rejoicing in your victory, a result of your sustained hard work & indomitable grit. Congratulations Gururaja. Keep shining for India

Some creating acrimony over religion, says Doval

National Security Adviser Ajit Doval said on Saturday that some people are trying to create animosity in the name of religion and ideology. "To counter religious animosity, we have to work together and make every religious body feel a part of India," he said at an event | P9

Union Minister Kiren Rijiju, who was also present at the meet, said the National Legal Services Authority has launched a campaign to identify undertrial prisoners eligible for release and recommend their cases to review committees. The campaign is part of Azadi ka Amrit Mahotsav — celebrations to mark 75 years of India's Independence.

According to the 'Prison Statistics India' report published by the National Crime Records Bureau in 2020, of the 4.88 lakh prison inmates in India, as many as 3.71 lakh were undertrials.

Underlining India's leadership in the fields of IT and fintech, the PM stressed that there cannot be a better time to introduce the power of technology to judicial proceedings.

"Under the e-Courts Mission, virtual courts are being started in the country. 24-hour courts have started functioning for crimes like traffic violations. Video conferencing infrastructure is also being expanded in the courts for the convenience of the people," he said.

ABVP men storm HM's house, lathi-charged

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

IN a major embarrassment to the State government, members of the ruling BJP's student wing Akhila Bharatiya Vidyarthi Parishad (ABVP) stormed Home Minister Araga Jnanendra's official residence in Bengaluru on Saturday. Police had to resort to lathi-charge to bring the situation under control. The activists were protesting against the murder of BJP Yuva Morcha member Praveen Nettaru.

The security breach at the home minister's residence in the state capital has exposed the chinks in the intelligence gathering system and the government came under fire from the Opposition Congress which has demanded Jnanendra's resignation.

Tension gripped areas around Jayamahal Road where the home minister's residence is located after a group of around 40 ABVP members breached the security. The agitators were holding placards which read, 'We gave our time, but you didn't give yours,' and 'Vidhana Soudha will be shaken if the students raise their voice.'

Five police personnel present at Jnanendra's residence told the ABVP protesters that the minister was not available to meet them as he was in Shivamogga on Saturday. | P4

Gujarati-Marwadi praise lands Maha governor in soup

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

MAHARASHTRA Governor Bhagat Singh Koshyari on Saturday waded into controversy by remarking that there will be no money left in Mumbai and it will cease to be the financial capital of the country if Gujaratis and Rajasthanis are removed from Maharashtra.

He had made the comment at a function in Mumbai, where he praised the contribution of Gujarati and Rajasthani people in the development of Mumbai to make it the country's financial capital. The governor's comment drew sharp reactions from the Shiv Sena, the Congress, and the NCP.

Shiv Sena President Uddhav Thackeray said while the Governor's position is very respectable one but the person who is occupying the post should also respect the office. "If he starts disrespecting the chair then it is very unfortunate", Thackeray said, adding that the governor has been insulting the Marathi people for the past two and a half years. State Congress spokesman Atul Londhe slammed the governor for his controversial remarks, saying they smack of his hatred for the state. He also demanded an apology from the governor.

Shiv Sena leader Sanjay Raut said if CM Eknath Shinde had self-respect, he should demand the resignation of the governor.

As the protests grew, Koshyari later issued a clarification saying he never intended to belittle the contribution of hardworking Marathi people. He claimed his statement was misconstrued.

According to a release issued by the Raj Bhavan, the governor noted that the Rajasthani-Marwari community is living in different parts of the country and also in countries like Nepal and Mauritius. "Wherever members of this community go, they not only do business, but also do acts of philanthropy by creating schools, hospitals," he said.

Prisoners use underwear elastic, bedspreads to smuggle in phones

PRAVEEN KUMAR @ Bengaluru

IT seems prisoners keep getting innovative ideas to smuggle drugs, mobile phones and other items into their barracks. Here is a case where inmates of a district jail on the outskirts of Bengaluru used empty toothpaste tubes and elastic straps of their undergarments to make a slingshot or catapult.

They made a 'rope' by joining bedspreads. Using the slingshot, they hurled one end of the rope made of bedspreads, outside the prison's compound wall. Their associates, who were waiting outside the wall, picked up the rope and tied 12 mobile phones to it. The prisoners then pulled back the rope. This creative idea came to the notice of the jail staff immediately, and a complaint was registered against three inmates V Appu Nayaka, A Naveed Khan and E Girish.

The incident happened at the district prison on the Bengaluru-Mysuru Road near Ramanagara town. A complaint was filed by Ambarish S Poojari, Superintendent of District Prison and Correctional Service on Thursday. The jail staff have recovered 12 mobile phones from barrack number 6. The prisoners smuggled the phones into their barracks between 1.45 am and 2 am. Jail staffers Deepak, Pushpa and Shwetha reported the matter to Assistant Jailor, Praveen Kumar who then informed the superintendent.

The staffers rushed to the spot behind the prison wall and saw men fleeing the area. A search was carried out in the barracks, and 12 mobile phones, most of them basic handsets, were recovered.

A case under Prisons Act, 1894, has been registered against the three.

As soon as the monsoon sets in, various organisations and associations come forward to host sports events at private farmlands, and include running races, tug-of-war and other rural sports

Between June and August, several farmlands, especially in the rural areas of Kodagu, host unique sports events. Sludgy farmlands become running tracks and hundreds take part in the event amid pouring rain and chilly weather

MUD FEST IN THE MARSHES

When the monsoon turns farmlands into sludge tracts, Kodagu girds up for some thrilling rural sports

PRAJNA GR @ Madikeri

MONSOONS in Kodagu are beautiful. The lushness of nature and play of the fog during the season is poetic -- that's apart from the recent calamities. And to add some thrill to the chilly wet weather, the ancestors of the land followed a unique pursuit -- the 'Kesaru Gaddhe Oota' event or Sludge Sports.

Races, football, tug-of-war... the sports are varied and taken up in slushy farmlands. Enthusiasts plunge into mud pools, unmindful of the rain and slippery earth, at one with nature. Young and old, girls and boys participate.

Kodagu is primarily an agricultural district, and the culture of the people is often intertwined with their farmlands. The important festivals of the district revolve around nature and farms – be it 'Puthari', 'Kailpodh' or 'Tula Sankramana'. Similarly, the district is also active in sports, and what's interesting is that the ancestors connected sports activities with farmlands, and took the entertainment level up by a notch.

Every year, between June and August, several farmlands, especially in rural areas of the district, host unique sports events. Sludgy farmlands become running tracks and hundreds take part in the event amid pouring rain and chilly weather.

"All our festivals are linked to farmlands, and our ancestors also linked sports activities with the farms. Once the fields were sowed with paddy seeds, the traditional sports 'Naati Oota' (translating to harvest run) would be held in every village," explained Apattira Tatu Monnappa, former president of the District Youth Club, and winner of the State Youth Award. In ancestral times, races were hosted in sludgy farmlands ploughed for paddy.

As soon as the monsoon sets in, various organisations and associations come forward to host sports events at private farmlands. Though sludge sports in farmlands formed a part of the culture, the activities witnessed a gradual decline. "Earlier, every village hosted this activity during the cultivation season. Locally grown produce, including banana bunches, coconuts and arecanuts, were handed over as prizes to the winners. This slowly vanished as youngsters moved to cities and showed less interest in their farms," recalled Kannikanda Subbaiah, a native of Surlabbi village.

REVIVING RURAL SPORTS

Nevertheless, the traditions are now being revived. While the villagers themselves hosted sports activities in farmlands as a part of farming customs, they are now being organised by various organisations and associations.

"While there were several sports activities during summer, events were few during the monsoon. With an aim to revive the rural sports tradition and involve youngsters in sports activities during the monsoon, we started organising 'Kesaru Gaddhe' annually," explained Rafeque Tuchamakeri, founder-president of Junior Chamber International (JCI) Ponnampet Nisarga. The organisation has been hosting the event for the past six years at a private farmland in Bittangala.

"During ancestral times, sporting events on farmlands were part of agriculture activity. Rural sports brought together the entire village, and it was a means of relaxation before the tedious work began. With farmlands now being abandoned and the interest in agriculture vanishing, rural sports have become a means of reviving both agriculture and sports. The associations and organisations now aim to introduce agricultural activities through these sports events," opined Tatu.

Sports activities now draw a large number of youngsters into the farmlands and have become events that residents look forward to. "Not many youngsters are interested in agriculture. To introduce agriculture and invoke interest in farmlands, sports activities in the farmlands were being held from ancestral times. While sports is a means of entertainment, it has also become a medium to introduce farming among kids. Interest in sports is, in turn, helping develop interest in agriculture," concluded Shashi Somaiah, a sports journalist and resident of Madikeri.

A group of Davanagere students is on a mission to produce sanitary napkins and diapers using areca husk to save the Earth

G SUBHASH CHANDRA @ Davangere

ONCE considered a taboo topic to discuss in public, the way Indians now think about menstruation has seen a paradigm shift in recent years. The National Family Health Survey reveals that close to 50 per cent of women in the 15-24 age group still use cloth for menstrual protection. It is a health risk if an uncleaned cloth is reused as it could lead to several infections.

But then are non-biodegradable sanitary pads the solution? You use them, roll them and then chuck them away. What happens to them? Where is their final resting place? According to a study conducted by the Indian government, 121 million women use sanitary napkins in the country, and multiply that by eight pads per cycle, it is 1 billion pads per month and a staggering 12 billion pads each year which take hundreds of years to decompose. The disposal of such plastic napkins has become a big matter of concern in the country and across the world.

But there is a group of warriors fighting this menace. There is a quiet revolution going on among biotechnology students of BIET, Davanagere, who are producing sanitary napkins using areca husks.

Dr NS Manjunath, head of biotechnology department and a graduate in MSc in microbiology from Kalaburagi University, is the man behind this innovation. He has been taking up research in this field which has prompted his students to take up the challenge of producing napkins and diapers from biodegradable raw material.

The napkins cost ₹4.80 a piece now, and if manufactured in bulk, the cost is expected to plunge which will help women in rural areas maintain their menstrual hygiene.

The project is at present supported by the New Age Incubation Network of the state government. The affordable eco-friendly napkins can not just help fight pollution, but also generate employment.

Girls in rural areas often use old clothes made of cotton or wool or a combination of both to manage menstrual bleeding. Studies indicate that girls who know about commercial sanitary pads prefer them, but for many, such pads are unavailable or unaffordable. These pads, when flushed, swell up after absorbing moisture and block drains, which is a global problem. Also, used sanitary pads may contain hepatitis and HIV viruses, which can live up to six months.

"Our sanitary napkins are made out of natural fibres. This technology uses bio-active material of plant origin which also has anti-microbial properties," Dr Manjunath says.

So how are these eco-friendly pads made? First, areca husks are collected from dumpyards and tested for quality. The husk is soaked in water so that it can be easily separated into hard and soft fibres which is washed with water to remove mud and other dirt.

Then, the fibre is treated with chemicals following standard protocols, and bleached to change its colour from brown to creamish white. It is then washed again with acetone and left to dry. After this, carding of the fibres is done to make them smooth. To study its effectiveness, the students conducted blood absorption test. The locally -made pads won with absorption capacity of 30 ml, as against 26 ml for branded napkins.

The areca napkins were sent to the SS Institute of Medical Sciences and Research Centre, Davanagere, for antimicrobial test and the results showed that there was no growth of microbes in the napkins. Bhoomika V Bhat from Sringeri, a student, told TNSE, "As menstrual hygiene in rural areas is not up to the mark, we decided to find a solution. Areca husk fibre came to our mind and we used it as the base material for the pads."

Our sanitary napkins are made out of natural fibres. This technology uses bio-active material of plant origin which also has anti-microbial properties

Areca husk diapers

In another unit, students Raghavendra RB, AM Nuthan, Basavaraj Rajendra Patil, Ojas M Bhargav and Darshan Totad have developed adult diapers and bandages using natural fibres drawn from areca husk. The Karnataka State Council for Science and Technology is supporting the project which has been selected for state-level presentation at VTU, Belagavi.

They said, "Husks are cooked and the water content is removed. The husk is then treated with a white concoction which contains sodium sulphite, sodium hydroxide and sodium carbonate and then they are sent into a disintegrator to prepare the pulp."

This pulp is bleached with sodium hypochlorite, caustic lye and chlorine dioxide for an yellowish-white colour. This enhances the softness mildly, and they are rolled into sheets. The diapers are made using super absorbent sheets and spreadsheets along with cotton pads. Diapers and bandages are assembled in alternate layers of super absorbent sheets covering the areca sheet which is covered by spreadsheets and dressing sheets. The diapers cost around ₹40-₹50 at present, they said.

Hesaraghatta: HC asks board to relook at its decision

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE High Court remitted the issue of declaring Hesaraghatta grasslands as Conservation Reserve under Section 36A of the Wild Life (Protection) Act to the Karnataka State Board for Wildlife (KSBWL) to take a decision afresh on the proposal submitted by the chief conservator of forests (CCF).

A division bench of Acting Chief Justice Alok Aradhe and Justice S Vishwajith Shetty disposed of two PILs by Vijay Nishanth and MR Seetharam and others.

Quashing the KSBWL decision of January 19, 2021 to reject a proposal by the CCF, the court opined that the Board passed the order in a cavalier manner.

"The impugned order reflects non-application of mind. Since it is cryptic, the same cannot be sustained in the eye of law," it observed.

The CCF's proposal had asked the Board to declare Hesaraghatta Grasslands Reserve as the area spreading across 5,010 acres is the only remaining grassland region in Bengaluru.
The Board rejected the proposal in response to the request of Yelahanka MLA SR Vishwanath, who was a special invitee at the meeting.

WHEN some students are disappointed with their ranks in the Karnataka Common Entrance Test (CET) this year, toppers for four courses said they had written the papers like a mock test, and never intended to top.

Bachelor of Naturopathy and Yogic Sciences and Bachelor of Veterinary Science topper Hrishikesh Nagbhushan Gangule, a 17-year-old student from National Centre for Excellence, who scored 98.167 and 98.33 respectively, told TNSE that KCET was a practise for NEET.

"I wanted to be sure that I was fully prepared for NEET. I actually wanted to pursue MBBS, hopefully in cardiology, but I'm not sure," he told TNSE. He had planned to utilise NEP's multiple entry and exit feature.

"I had genuinely not prepared for the KCET. It came as a surprise to me that I have topped in two courses," he said. Hrishikesh also came second in the rankings for the B.Pharma course scoring 98.333.

Meanwhile, BSc (Agri) topper Arjun Ravisankar, from HAL Public School, said he had written the biology paper out of his passion for the subject, and aims to become an engineer. "I wasn't expecting to top," Arjun said.

Engineering topper Apoorv Tandon from National Public School, Yelahanka, who scored 98.611 in engineering, said he had used the CET as a stepping stone to write JEE.

"I want to be an engineer, hopefully in the mechanical field. I studied around eight hours a day. But my aim is to write JEE. I wasn't expecting to be number one," he said.

Meanwhile, twins Vrajesh and Vrishan, from Madhavakripa English Medium School, Manipal, Udupi district secured second and fourth ranks, respectively.

Repeat students upset over evaluation method

Bengaluru: Repeat students of the Karnataka Common Entrance Test (CET) were disappointed with their ranks as their PU exam scores were not considered in the final results. For this year, the marks for freshers were computed by considering 50% of their board exam results, and the rest was CET score. But for repeat students, only the current CET score was considered. Nikesh, a repeat student, said his CET score was 103 and rank 66,000. He had scored 284 in board exams. It is injustice for repeat students as their board marks were not considered, he said. KEA executive director Ramya S clarified that last year, the government decided that rankings will be based on CET scores only for repeat students as they did not write the board exams last year. Rekha Phadke, mother of a fresher Neel, said that the exam was tough for those who prepared only for the CET compared to those who had prepared for competitive exams. - Namrata Sindhwani

Accused aimed at my heart: Ex-Lokayukta

"WAITING for the right time, the accused had chosen the lunch hour as no staffers were inside the chamber. He came and gave some papers to divert my attention. Just before I turned my eyeballs to give back the papers after going through them, he was taking out a knife from his pocket. He jumped on my table and attempted to stab me directly in the chest. Had I not held his hand, it would have pierced my heart, resulting in killing me on the spot..."

This was how former High Court judge, Justice P Vishwanath Shetty, recollected the horror before the city civil and sessions court on Saturday, while standing in the witness box for over 75 minutes. An attempt on Justice Shetty's life was made on March 7, 2018, when he was the Lokayukta.

Earlier, the CCTV footage of the Lokayukta office which captured the entire incident, was viewed by Judge SN Hegde, LV Additional City Civil and Sessions Court, in the presence of accused Tejraj Sharma.

Justice Shetty deposed that the accused had planned and come prepared to eliminate him, looking at the way the accused acted even after the murder bid failed. "I suffered multiple injuries. I had to get admitted to the hospital for a week and then rest for another 50 days," he narrated. "When I tightly held his right hand holding the knife, our staffer Palani immediately came to my rescue. But the accused scared him away by flashing the knife. The accused did not go back till the gunman took out the gun," said Justice Shetty.

When the counsel of the accused said the knife is used to cut vegetables Justice Shetty replied that the knife can also be used to take the life of a person.

State govt does U-turn on changing dist ministers

Jolle and Anand Singh back to handling Vijayanagara, Koppal

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE state government did a quick U-tun after interchanging in-charge ministers of two districts on Saturday.

The order (dated July 29) was issued, appointing Muzrai Minister Shashikala Jolle as Koppal district in-charge minister and Tourism Minister Anand Singh as Vijayanagara district in-charge. But within hours, the order was repealed and the two ministers were allowed to continue with their earlier responsibilities, as per the order issued on January 24. Jolle will continue to handle affairs at Vijayanagara, while Singh will remain the Koppal district in-charge.

The government seems to have passed the order in response to a demand from Anand Singh's followers that he be made the district in charge of Vijayanagara. As Vijayanagara is his home district, and the government had earlier taken a conscious decision not to allot districts from where the ministers hail from, the government quickly withdrew the order. Also, soon after the order was passed, pressure started mounting on Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai from ministers to give them their home districts, sources in the government said.

In January, Bommai allotted his cabinet colleagues districts other than their home districts following instructions from the party high command. The new system was introduced with the thinking that ministers from other districts would be unbiased towards party workers and work towards improving the party. But some ministers had felt it would be difficult and time consuming to handle districts away from their hometowns.

Now, with the Assembly polls nine months away, there is an increasing uneasiness among ministers that they will not be able to do justice to their allotted districts as they have to concentrate on their constituencies. But the high command is of the view that established leaders should develop a capacity to have their clout even outside their hometowns.

Muslim committee announces ₹30L compensation each to Masood, Fazil

VINCENT D'SOUZA @ Mangaluru

THE Dakshina Kannada and Udupi District Muslim Central Committee, an umbrella organisation of all Muslim forums in the twin districts, on Saturday announced a compensation of Rs 30 lakh each to the families of B Masood and Mohammed Fazil who were killed recently.

The committee, at an emergency meeting held at its president Mohammed Masood's house in the city, expressed strong disappointment over Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai not visiting the houses of the two victims. The meeting was attended by former minister UT Khader, former MLA Moiuddin and others. They decided to give the compensation from the committee through crowd funding and extend all possible legal aid to the two families.

16 more questioned

The police picked up 16 more people for questioning in connection with Fazil's murder. With this, the number of persons picked up for questioning in this case has touched 51.

Condemning Bommai for not visiting the families of Masood and Fazil, the community leaders skipped a peace committee meeting convened by ADGP (Law and Order) Alok Kumar, Deputy Commissioner KV Rajendra and other officials in view of the three murders in Dakshina Kannada in 10 days. Another meeting will be convened soon as Muslim representatives stayed away, the organisers said. Strangely, prominent leaders from the ruling party and Sangh Pariwar too gave the meeting a miss.

Some major suggestions given by the participants to improve the law and order situation in the district included booking cases against those who make provocative speeches, preventing local media and TV channels from publishing half-baked reports on emotive issues and banning social media in times of crisis.

Some felt that the transfer of police officials for ordering a lathicharge in Bellare and handing over of the murder case to NIA will affect the morale of the local police. Others said the deployment of police officials who do not know the local languages as they are from outside the district has affected intelligence gathering.

Alok Kumar said beat, mohalla and youth committees will be formed within a month to engage with people.

BJP netas seek money to help Praveen's kin, workers angry

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Mangaluru

IN a huge embarrassment to BJP, several party workers have lashed out at some BJP leaders for sending out messages on social media asking party workers to donate money to help the family of Bharatiya Janata Yuva Morch leader Praveen Nettaru from Sullia who was brutally murdered a few days ago.

A screenshot of party workers expressing their anger against these messages went viral on social media sites and Yuva Brigade leader Chakravarthy Sulibele too criticised the move. "Pathetic situation of BJYM Karnataka. They are collecting money from the local people giving their own account details. A leader sends a msg and gets a befitting reply! Ur ministers loot us and u collect money from us for ur karyakarta'," he tweeted tagging the BJP Yuva Morcha state president and national president.

After Sulibele's tweet, the state BJP through its official Twitter handle asked its leaders not to collect money. "There are messages doing the rounds on social media asking people to donate money to Praveen Nettaru's family using the name of BJP. Some people are already collecting money privately claiming it to be for the Nettaru family. People should not pay heed to it. The BJP party has already provided a sum as financial support and we will stand by the family in future too," the party tweeted.

In the screenshot that has gone viral, BJP youth worker Shrinivas sent a message on WhatsApp to other party workers giving details of his bank account and stating that he would hand over the money to Praveen's family. A party worker lashed out at Srinivas saying, "First, you should ask the ministers to help the family, who are looting money with 30 to 40 percent of commission. Hindu brethren know how to help the family. You collect money here, console the family and provide all facilities to those who are in jail. Shame on you."

Shrinivas seeking money for Praveen's family has caused a huge embarrassment to BJP at a time when party representatives are facing the wrath of workers over the killing of Hindutva workers.

Shivamogga: Hitting back at Congress leader Siddaramaiah for his statements against the Sangh Parivar, BJP leader K S Eshwarappa on Saturday said the former chief minister is making such statements for political gain. "Without understanding how the RSS operates, he is making comments. Let him visit a RSS shakha for a couple of days and understand what's being taught there," he said. Demanding an apology from Siddaramaiah, Eshwarappa said no politicians in the past have made such "low comments" against the RSS. ENS

Former CM HD Kumaraswamy inaugurates a JDS workers' meeting in Kalaburagi

WILL IMPLEMENT PANCHARATNA SCHEME OR RETIRE, SAYS HDK

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Kalaburagi

CALLING upon voters to support JDS in the upcoming Assembly elections, former chief minister HD Kumaraswamy said he will dissolve the party and retire from politics if he fails to implement the 'pancharatna' programme if the party comes to power.

At a party workers' meeting here on Saturday, he said that though he became chief minister twice, his tenure was short both times. "Even in that short period, I have implemented several welfare schemes, including waiving of loans of farmers and conducting gram vastavyas (village stays) to solve problems of the people," he said.

The pancharatna programme will focus on education by opening more English medium schools for rural students. It will also give priority to the health sector by opening 30-bed hospitals at all gram panchayats. The poor will get free medical treatment at these centres.

"Instead of the loan waiver scheme, we are planning to make the farming community economically stronger by encouraging them to adopt scientific farming. We will give remunerative prices to farmers for their produce. If voted to power, JDS will provide employment to youth and houses to the houseless," he added.

He called upon people to look at all political parties before exercising their franchise. "It is in your hand to choose a bulldozer government or a government with the heart of a mother. BJP is fooling the youth in the name of religion. Both Congress and BJP are sowing the seeds of hatred among people," he said.

JDS candidates for 7 seats announced

Kalaburagi: JDS leader H D Kumarswamy announced the names of candidates of seven out of nine assembly constituencies of Kalaburagi district on Saturday. The JD (S) will field Nasir Hussain Ustad from Kalaburagi North, Balraj Guttedar from Sedam, Sanjivan Yakapur from Chincholi, Shivakumar Natikar from Afzalpur, Maheshwari from Aland and Kedaralingaiah from Jewargi constituency. The party will announce the names of Kalaburagi South and Chittapur constituencies shortly, Kumaraswamy said at a party workers meeting. ENS

Kumaraswamy hits out at Ramesh

JDS leader H D Kumaraswamy on Saturday slammed senior Congress leader and former Speaker Ramesh Kumar for allegedly misbehaving with journalists covering the Congress meeting in Kolar on Friday. Taking to social media, the former chief minister strongly condemned the attack on media persons. "It is ironic that the self-proclaimed constitutional pundit dos not know that media is the fourth pillar of democracy," he said. Kumaraswamy said the incident exposed the true nature of a person who had also made insensitive remarks about women in the assembly and had spoken about Congress leaders making enough for three to four generations. ENS

BUT the angry protesters gatecrashed and one of them jumped inside. When the policemen went to catch him, the group forced their way inside the compound and started raising slogans. They were demanding a ban on organisations like Social Democratic Party of India (SDPI) and Popular Front of India (PFI).

High drama prevailed for over 15 minutes as the protesters started arguing with the policemen. Some of them were taken into preventive custody. The police filed an FIR against 30 ABVP members on charges of trespassing, causing mischief and damaging public property.

Police stop ABVP members from entering the Home Minister's house | EXPRESS

City Police Commissioner C H Pratap Reddy admitted to intelligence failure. "The ABVP members had come for a silent protest and to submit a memorandum. Instead, they barged into the minister's house by pushing police personnel and forcibly opening the gates. Most of them were detained immediately and the situation was brought under control. The intelligence department should have gathered some information but that was not done," he said.

Meanwhile, all Deputy Commissioners of Police (DCP) across Bengaluru have been instructed to tighten security at the residences of ministers and BJP MLAs.

After the incident, Jnanendra said he would invite ABVP members for talks and listen to them. "I understand their sentiments. ABVP members went to my residence when I was not there and expressed their feelings," the minister said.

I don't need Siddu's certificate: Araga

Shivamogga: In the backdrop of BJP workers and Hindu forums up in arms against the ruling party, Home Minister Araga Jnanendra said they grow together by following the same ideology. "We understand their pain and even I couldn't get sleep for two nights after Paveen Nettaru's murder," he told reporters on Saturday. He said there are plans to start fast-track courts to provide speedy justice to people. On former CM Siddaramaiah seeking his resignation, Jnanendra said it was the Congress government that withdrew 2,000 cases filed in various religious incidents. "It was the Congress that supported the fanatic elements and engaged in vote-bank politics," he added. Reacting to Siddaramaiah's remark that Jnanendra is unfit to be Home Minister, the latter said, "I don't need to get a certificate from him. Surprise pick: BJP nominates Chinchanasur for MLC seat

BENGALURU: The BJP high command has sprung a surprise by nominating former Congress leader Baburao Chinchansur for the lone MLC seat which the party is most likely to win. The decision will apparently strengthen the party's base in the Kalyana-Karnataka region where Chinchansur has a strong following in the backward 'Koli' community.

Despite many BJP leaders eyeing the seat, which fell vacant following the resignation of former Congress MLC CM Ibrahim in March 2022, the party high command went with Chinchansur, considering his clout in the region.

On Monday Chinchansur will file his nomination papers. Since Congress and JDS are not fielding any of their candidates due to lack of numbers, his election is certain.

Gururaja Poojary reacts after winning the bronze medal in the men's 61kg category weightlifting event, at the Commonwealth Games in the UK on Saturday | PTI

From down with fever, to a bronze... Gururaja tastes success

PRAKASH SAMAGA @ Udupi

JULY 30, 2022, will be etched in the memory of the residents of Kundapur taluk forever as their local boy Gururaja Poojary won the bronze medal in the 61kg category in weightlifting by lifting a total of 269 kg in the Commonwealth Games 2022 in Birmingham. Gururaja, who hails from Vandse in Udupi's Kundapur taluk, had won silver in the 2018 Commonwealth Games.

Gururaja had initially tried his hand in wrestling, but later moved to weightlifting — thanks to his coach Rajendra Prasad of SDM College, Ujire. Gururaja, son of Mahabala Poojari, a lorry driver, and Paddu Poojari, showed interest in sports while studying in Vandse's Government Higher Primary School.

His talent was noticed while studying in Mookambika High School, Kollur. The physical education teacher of the school, Sukesh Shetty, encouraged him to pursue wrestling. Later, he finished his graduation in SDM College, Ujire, where Rajendra Prasad trained him in weightlifting. Speaking to The New Sunday Express, Gururaja's elder brother Manohar said the entire family is on cloud 9. "We are all happy that he has won the bronze... but we were expecting him to win gold. He recovered from fever just four days ago. He had body pain... otherwise he would have got gold," Manohar, who works as a mason, added. His father Mahabala had a surgery eight months back and is recovering.

Before getting into the national team, whatever little Gururaja earned as prize money went into training. Once he had got Rs 25,000 in a university event and with that money he had taken care of his diet and equipment. His father was finding it difficult to support the family of eight. Gururaja is fifth among six brothers.

Though Gururaja had tried to join the Army, because of his height (156 cm) he could not enter the services. He, however, was selected as air-craftsman in the Indian Air Force in 2014 as there was a height relaxation at 152 cm.

In 2017, Gururaja claimed a Commonwealth Championship bronze in Australia. Gururaja, who began weightlifting in 2010, had won gold in the Commonwealth Senior Weightlifting Championship, lifting a personal best of 249 kg (108kg+141kg) in Penang in 2016.

Earlier that year, he had won gold at the South Asian Games. "He wants to build a spacious house in the same locality and make his father happier," said a neighbour.

The Kerala High Court has stated that a transgender person has the same rights as others to participate in any sporting event even if there isn't a category reserved for them. The court made the observation while allowing a transgender person, whose chosen self-perceived gender identity is a woman, to participate provisionally in the district-level judo competition in Kozhikode

Stalin: BJP runs parallel govts using governors

ENS @ Chennai

TAMIL NADU Chief Minister MK Stalin on Saturday said the BJP is attempting to run parallel governments across States through its governors, and the BJP-led Centre is following anti-people policies. Speaking at the India @75 Conclave in Thrissur through video conference, Stalin asserted that the DMK-led alliance in Tamil Nadu is an alliance of ideologies and it will continue. "Those who attempt to impose one faith, one language, and one culture are indeed trying to destroy the unity of the country and they are the real enemies of India. We should never ever give room to these evil forces," he said.

Stalin's remarks came as a strong clarification to speculations that the bonhomie displayed by the CM and PM Narendra Modi during the inauguration of the 44th Chess Olympiad might translate into an alliance between the DMK and BJP in the future.

SUNDAY INTERVIEW

'BREAKING INFECTION CHAIN AT EARLY STAGE CRUCIAL TO PREVENT MONKEYPOX SPREAD'

BOSKY KHANNA @Bengaluru

AFTER Covid-19, the fear of monkeypox is now on the rise. Though this is a self-limiting disease in most people, the symptoms can last from two to four weeks. Dr Giridhar R Babu, Professor, Head — Life-course Epidemiology, Indian Institute of Public Health, explains to The New Sunday Express that severe cases are in a minor proportion and the case fatality ratio is around 3-6 per cent. He also says the government is working on preparing a testing kit for detection.

How serious is the monkeypox?
There could be severe cases in a minor proportion, and the case fatality ratio is around 3-6%. The degree of severity depends on the extent of virus exposure and the health status of the person. People with immuno-compromised diseases are likely to be at a higher risk of infection and may have complications. Children, pregnant or breastfeeding women and persons with one or more complications too could be at risk.

Do you feel cases are being under-reported because people mistake it to be chickenpox?
Though there are rashes in chickenpox and measles, the pattern of onset and distribution are distinct and different for these three diseases. Skin rash on any part of your body (even if it is only 1 or 2 spots) may be the only symptom. Other symptoms are fever, chills, headache, muscle aches and backaches. Another distinguishing feature is swollen lymph nodes, much earlier during the prodromal phase. The symptoms usually appear 5–21 days after exposure. People should be alert and report symptoms like swollen lymph nodes, sores in the mouth, rash, and eye irritation or redness. There could be small lesions in the beginning; in the mouth or over the skin. A rash begins as a macule, papule, or vesicle, then progresses to a pustule, and forms a crust. Lesions are often seen in one stage of development and are very slow. The rashes will be denser on the face, palms, and soles.

How prepared is the govt with testing kits for monkeypox?
Currently, there is no testing kit validated by ICMR or approved by the drug controller in India. It will take a week or so to get the validation done for testing kits. Therefore, relying on tests advertised by diagnostic centres is not advisable. Given the expertise and experience of how India managed to scale up the testing, I am confident that we can manage validation, permissions, and scale up efficiently.

What should the government be doing to prevent monkeypox from coming into the country in a big way?
The Central and State governments should take several measures. These include issuing guidelines for managing monkeypox by the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare. The Centre has invited vaccine-makers to develop a vaccine for monkeypox. It has also gone ahead with the process of validation for manufacturers to develop diagnostic kits. It is worrying that for overburdened health systems, a chain of attacks of pandemics can lead to the destruction of the system. Breaking the chain at a very early stage can reduce many infections and is more cost and time effective than starting work once it spreads to many people. At this very early stage, health systems and governments should take strict action regarding mobility, isolation, and quarantine, which could not be followed promptly in the initial stages of Covid. This will prevent the virus from spreading to the masses. At a wider level, countries should constantly be alert for signals related to the disease. Proactive measures related to prevention, detection, and reporting are required.

What precautions should people take to prevent infection?
Persons with monkeypox that include its accidental implantation in eyes, mouth, or other anatomical areas might constitute a special hazard. Information and awareness around the outbreaks should be constructively used to engage and empower high-risk communities and reduce stigma and discrimination. The challenge is to eliminate misinformation and disinformation wherein the public, social media companies, and civil society organisations must collaborate and work with the government.

There were reports that the monkeypox virus is a variant or a derivative of the smallpox virus. What are the vaccines for it?
Among vaccines, JYNNEOS is a live vaccine produced from the strain Modified Vaccinia Ankara-Bavarian Nordic, an attenuated, non-replicating orthopoxvirus. This is also known as IMVAMUNE, IMVANEX, MVA. This is indicated for prevention of monkeypox disease in those 18 and above who are at higher risk for smallpox or monkeypox infection. The other vaccine is ACAM2000, a live vaccinia virus vaccine that FDA licensed in August 2007 and is meant for active immunisation against smallpox. As per the emergency authorisation of the CDC in the US, this is useful against monkeypox during an outbreak. Another agent, tecovirimat, is also available for treatment; an antiviral medication indicated for smallpox disease is found useful in adults and paediatric patients weighing at least 3 kg. Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis is a vaccination for select persons at risk for occupational exposure to monkeypox, including personnel in research or clinical laboratory and health care team members at risk for occupational exposure to orthopoxviruses.

TAC for sewage surveillance to detect monkeypox

SHILPA P @ Bengaluru

WITH four cases of monkeypox confirmed in India and two suspected cases in Bengaluru, Karnataka Covid Technical Advisory Committee (TAC) has met again and recommended to the Health Department to immediately initiate sewage surveillance as done in the US to detect monkeypox viral DNA in routine wastewater.

TAC has stated that even one case shall be considered as an outbreak and a detailed investigation shall be done by rapid response teams as per the Union Government guidelines.

TAC has recommended to begin sewage surveillance by testing samples from Bengaluru's Kempegowda International Airport (KIA).

It should be done through Infectious Disease Research Foundation (IDRF) that is presently conducting sewage surveillance for Covid -19 in Bengaluru city along with technical support for it by Virus Research and Diagnostic Laboratory of BMRCI. In July, IDRF tested 56 samples in 10 sites at KIA, apartment complexes and elsewhere in the city and detected SARS-CoV-2 in 46 samples.

TAC has also recommended to the Health Department to soon conduct a training programme from RGUHS on management of monkeypox for medical and paramedical personnel from Health and Family Welfare and Medical Colleges.

'Don't panic'

Even as the final report of the suspected monkeypox case from Bengaluru is awaited from NIV Pune, Health Minister Dr K Sudhakar asked people not to panic as it is not fatal. "Yet we are on high alert. Those who have taken vaccination for smallpox are protected to an extent and they may only have mild symptoms," he said.

Country's first monkeypox patient leaves hospital

Kollam: The country's first monkeypox patient, a 35-year-old Kollam resident, has been discharged from the Government Medical College, Thiruvananthapuram, on Saturday after undergoing treatment since July 14. The discharge was approved after two tests conducted within 72 hours showed negative results, said Health Minister Veena George. Officials said the patient is mentally and physically fit. The boils that appeared on the body have been completely healed. As this was the first case in the country, the treatment protocol was prepared as per the instructions of the National Institute of Virology in Pune. The patient reached Kerala from the UAE on July 12. He was identified with the disease two days later. His primary contacts, including his parents and a doctor, were isolated. "We conducted tests on all persons who were included in his primary contact list. The results were all negative," she added. ENS

WHAT IS A FREEBIE, WHOSE MONEY IS IT ANYWAY?

THE THIRD EYE

SHANKKAR AIYAR
Author of The Gated Republic, Aadhaar: A Biometric History of India's 12 Digit Revolution, and Accidental India
shankkar.aiyar@gmail.com

AN old chestnut made an appearance in national political discourse this week.

In 2006, S Subramaniam Balaji approached the Madurai Bench of the High Court of Madras against the pre-poll promise of freebies – such as free television sets. The petition was dismissed and Balaji filed an appeal before the Supreme Court. Five years later, in 2011, in the next assembly election, once again freebies including grinders, laptops, free rice and free cattle were announced.

In July 2013, the Supreme Court while disposing the petition observed that freebies influence all people and "shakes the root of free and fair elections to a large degree." It directed the Election Commission to frame guidelines for a model code of conduct in consultation with all the recognized political parties. The commission consulted parties and in April 2015 issued the 'Model Code of Conduct for the Guidance of the Political Parties and Candidates'. The parade of elections and freebies has continued.

This week, nearly a decade later, the quest to contain the cult of freebies was back in the courts. The Supreme Court was petitioned to intervene once again on the very same issue by Ashwini Upadhyay who is a lawyer and a member of the BJP – which incidentally has promised pre-poll freebies in the past . Upadhyay contended that the distribution of freebies amounted to bribery. The Court asked the Centre to consult the Finance Commission if the promise of "irrational freebies" during polls could be curbed.

The context and the content of the oral directive raised the hackles of the parties in the opposition. In a curious coincidence just a week earlier the Prime Minister had launched a tirade against the 'revadi' aka freebie culture in politics. Parties were quick to raise the operative and philosophical question. P Thiaga Rajan, Tamil Nadu's combative finance minister, took to Twitter. He asked who decides "what is a Freebie as against an essential service, who decides what is irrational" and added "Does the Constitution of India envision the Judiciary as the chaperone of the voter – voteseeker relationship?"

The phrase freebie owes its etymology to 1920s American politics. What is a freebie, whose money is it anyway? Freebie politics is effectively electoral insurance paid for with taxpayer monies. What a freebie is depends on who is asking, where and when. History shows that what is dubbed a freebie today morphs into an entitlement, a national programme a few years later.

The mid-day meal scheme started by K Kamaraj and expanded by MG Ramachandran in 1982 was first mocked by Delhi only to be adopted as a national programme a decade later. N T Rama Rao's promise of rice at Rs 2 per kg is the original avatar of the current day National Food Security Programme. Telangana's Rythu Bandhu and Odisha's Kalia were fore-runners of the PM Kisan Samman Nidhi. The free medicines scheme launched in Tamil Nadu is the template for a national scheme.

However, not every freebie evolves into an ideal. An instructive example of freebie turning disastrous is the free power regime pioneered by the Akali Dal in the nineties. The free power regimes is a live threat to India's energy and economic security. No revenue is collected for a fifth of the power distributed, and State Discoms are losing over Rs 75000 crore a year – 28 of them are in losses and owe generating entities over Rs 1.09 lakh crore.

Freebies are fashioned at the intersection of political and administrative compulsions to woo voters from islands of hostility and denial. Faced with inability to resolve issues haunting people the political class leans on Robinhood politics and flyover economics – address the consequences even if causes remain unattended. The rise in demand for MGNREGS for instance reflects the failure of states to improve the ecosystem for job creation.

The necessity to corral the temptations of parties to roll out freebies is indisputable – given the fallout visible in the gaps in basic services of policing, education and health care. The cost of sops is beggaring state budgets. Indeed, a recent note on state finances published by the RBI warns, "New sources of risks have emerged in the form of rising expenditure on non-merit freebies, expanding contingent liabilities, and the ballooning overdue of DISCOMs."

States are well within their rights to induct new programmes but guardrails are needed to align spend of public monies with public purpose. This calls for fixing the gaps in design, execution and accountability. The election commission could mandate that the manifesto informs voters what is the problem being solved, what it will cost taxpayers and where the additional moolah will come from. The finance commission could devise a mechanism to limit expenditure on populist schemes via the FRBM Act – at the very least a safeguard which ensures basic public services are not starved. A mandate for bi-annual outcome reports on schemes could enhance audit and public accountability.

All of this requires eternal vigilance on the part of the voting class. Finally in a democracy the power to block or allow the march of freebies rests with the voters.

SHORTCUTTING STATE LEGISLATIVE BUSINESS

OPINION

BIBEK DEBROY
Chairman, Economic Advisory Council to the PM

RARE is the person interested in policy who has not heard of PRS, that is, PRS Legislative Research. It has had a considerable impact on our understanding of legislation and productivity of Parliament, not to speak of research support to MPs. The Constitution divides legislative powers between Union and State governments. Therefore, understanding State Legislatures and the productivity of MLAs is no less important. Unfortunately, we do not pay that much attention to what a State does or does not do, its revenue and expenditure. In passing, many reform areas are in the State List of the Seventh Schedule or Concurrent List. One year ago, PRS started a publication titled "Annual Review of State Laws" and we now (July 2022) have the second version for the calendar year 2021. This focuses on the legislative activity of 30 State legislatures, 28 States, plus Delhi and Puducherry. We know how much time was spent on legislation and what kind of legislation was passed. Last year's report didn't paint a pretty picture, and neither does this year's report.

For both years, 2020 and 2021, low productivity can be conveniently attributed to the pandemic. While there is a grain of truth in that, it is also largely a red herring. State legislatures, despite being funded publicly, aren't productive enough, and reports like these make citizens aware, enabling them to exert the countervailing pressure needed for better governance.

In 2021, on average, assemblies met for 21 days. Should State assemblies meet for a minimum number of days every year?

Most citizens will think so, and so did the Commission set up to review the working of the Constitution. The number of days recommended by the Commission was a function of the size of the assembly. For larger States, the stipulation was 90 days. As against this, we have 21 days, and that is an average pushed up Kerala, Odisha and Karnataka. If you take these three States away, the average drops sharply.

For instance, consider the visible one of Delhi. It met for only eight days, a feat matched by Andhra Pradesh. In both 2020 and 2021, this can be ascribed to the red herring of Covid. Perhaps one should take the average between 2016 and 2021 to net out (partly) the pandemic effect. The averages are 11 days for Tripura, 14 days for Punjab, 14 days for Haryana, 14 days for Uttarakhand and 16 days for Delhi. In some legislatures, the default is one of rarely meeting. Covid merely made it worse. Kerala and Odisha, which take legislation more seriously, are outliers. Notice that most sittings are during budget sessions. The Constitution does say there shouldn't be a gap of more than six months between two assembly sessions. Therefore, there are monsoon and winter sessions to ensure there is compliance. But no more than that.

Don't States decree a minimum number of sitting days? Karnataka is the only one that does this through legislation (enacted in 2005). Manipur, Odisha, Punjab and UP have sought to do this through rules. But the point is - (a) Most States don't feel the need for any such stated minimum. (b) When there is a stated minimum, that is honoured more in the breach. In 2021, the average number of Bills passed by a State was 21, coincidentally the same as the number of sittings days. This suggests the obvious. Legislation is meant to be taken seriously. That's the reason State assemblies exist. But Bills are passed without scrutiny. In several States, they are passed on the day they are introduced. In fairness, a Bill may be referred to a Select Committee. If that's done and if the Bill has been referred to a Select Committee, there is no need for it to be examined in detail in the assembly. So runs the argument. Unfortunately, that's not true either. There are variations among States. But in general, less than 10% of Bills are referred to Committees.

Not only do assemblies not meet as much as they should, but limited examination of Bills also implies legislation passed leaves a lot to be desired in terms of quality. Plus, since legislatures do not meet, there is a preference for using the ordinance route

Not only do assemblies not meet as much as they should, but limited examination of Bills also implies legislation passed leaves a lot to be desired in terms of quality. Plus, since legislatures do not meet, there is a preference for using the ordinance route.

Organs of State become more accountable and transparent because of countervailing pressure exerted by citizens. That's the way it works in an indirect democracy like ours. I think the earlier work by PRS contributed towards making Parliament more accountable. We elect the government we deserve, and the government we elect is the government we deserve. Taken together, that is a paraphrasing of Joseph de Maistre and Thomas Jefferson.

To exert countervailing pressure, we need information. How many "laws" are there in India? That's slightly difficult to answer since it depends on what we mean by "law" and how we define it. For instance, do we count an amending act separately? Having said that, there are a little less than 1000 Union-government statutes, and each State also has a little less than 1000 statutes. That is, States are just as important as the Union government, if not more, in the matter of legislation. The first version of "Annual Review of State Laws" told us how lackadaisical States were about legislation. If that was excused because of Covid, the second version tells us this has become a habit. (The report also has a considerable amount of detail on the kind of legislation that was passed, and the subjects.)

CHESS OLYMPIAD WILL MOTIVATE YOUNGSTERS

OPINION

R B RAMESH
Grandmaster, founder of CHESS Gurukul and India B coach

IT is fitting that the 44th chess Olympiad is being hosted at a place already known for its chess pedigree. The sobriquet for Chennai, the cradle of chess, adds to its romanticism. The passion the sport enthuses and the anticipation it creates here is unparalleled elsewhere in the world. No wonder Tamil Nadu boasts of 26 Grandmasters and numerous other International Masters, and the region is buzzing with chess activities. Therefore, hosting the Olympiad here is fantastic for the game's growth.

I feel this for chess aficionados and enthusiasts would be a moment of reckoning. This is the first time the Olympiad, one of the most prestigious events in chess, is being hosted in India. Every corner of the city is bathed in chess motifs. There are banners, placards, and cut-outs, and the mascot 'Thambi' greets everyone on every street corner. In short, a carnival is on in the city and at the venue, Mahabalipuram, famous for its historical significance. Prime Minister Narendra Modi inaugurated the Olympiad. Tamil Nadu chief minister MK Stalin, and FIDE and AICF officials too were present during the launch.

In terms of magnitude, the Olympiad is humungous. We know how much it will motivate the youngsters to take the sport. I must also say that credit should go to the All India Chess Federation (AICF) and the TN government for not just bidding for the Olympiad but, more importantly, getting everything ready within a short period. The highlight is constructing a colossal 44,000-square feet temporary structure that is soundproof and can accommodate around 1000 players at a time.

More than 180 countries will be taking part in the event. Although Russia (because of the Ukraine war) and China won't be taking part, the field is still strong, and one cannot take any game lightly.

World champion Magnus Carlsen's presence elevates the quality of the event. As a coach, I believe this will be an ample opportunity for all the chess players in the country to see and learn.

As a chess-playing country, we are considered one of the top nations. In terms of chess following in Chennai and Tamil Nadu, it is immense. There is something different here. Unlike in the West, we don't frown upon hard work. It is considered a virtue here. Many children take up the sport quite seriously from a very tender age. And in a way, it is good because there is very little distraction.

And, of course, there is Viswanathan Anand. The former world champion and a legend. He's a big role model here. No one can motivate a child more than a star. More people want to take up the game when good players come along.

India at the Olympiad

I am particularly excited about our teams – all the teams in the Open and women's categories. I am the coach of Team B in Open, and on paper, it may be seeded 11th, but I think it is one of the teams to watch out for. Talent-wise, it has some of the most exciting young players. Nihal Sarin, D Gukesh, R Praggnanandhaa (Pragga), B Adhiban and Raunak Sadhwani make the team. The players have prepared earnestly and are in a good frame of mind which is essential in chess. They need to keep their focus, and I am sure they will do well. Gukesh and Pragga are in good form, and in terms of experience, Adhiban has played in the Olympiad previously. Nihal and Raunak are exciting players. In Olympiad, we need to perform as a unit. There is no point if one or two players play well.

I heard from my friends that former world champion Vladimir Kramnik and US's John Donaldson are struck by the presence of highly-talented junior players in the country. They also predict that a future world champion will emerge from the current lot of youngsters

Life as a coach

My job is to keep the players in a positive frame of mind, and it's crucial during a long tournament. We must strategise, plan, adapt and innovate as we go along. We assess the strengths and weaknesses of each team (four players play simultaneously). At the end of each game, we have to study where we went right and where we can improve.

Everybody keeps asking me, 'how is Chennai able to produce so many Grandmasters?' My simple answer is because of our talent and the children's enthusiasm towards the sport. The answer is the talent pool that we have.

Years ago, I left a comfortable job and started a chess academy (Chess Gurukul) because I had faith in our talent in the state and the country.

Many parents often ask me whether children from Chennai succeed due to their excellent understanding of the game. Again, my answer is that it's not just understanding, but their ability to grasp things quickly, work very hard and at the same time harbour ambition to do well. For, even if you have a good understanding, success will elude you if you do not work hard.

I heard from my friends that former world champion Vladimir Kramnik and US's John Donaldson are struck by the presence of highly-talented junior players in the country. They also predict that a future world champion will emerge from the current lot of youngsters.

I, too, share their optimism and believe that we have the talent that can one day go on to be a world champions. But there is a vast difference between dream and reality. One needs to work religiously for years in a sustained manner to be at the top. Hopefully, we will see a new world champion from India soon.

Parliament impasse

Referring to your editorial 'A dysfunctional parliament is a collective failure' (July 30), the zeitgeist of the Indian parliamentary environment since 2014 is in a shambles resulting in undemocratic conduct of business and near incongruent enactments. While the government at the centre is contravening the cause of federalism, the collaborative opposition in parliament, by hell-bent acts of disruption, is sabotaging the proceedings of parliament. It is a precarious time for democracy. You have thus rightly pointed out the failure as collective. The citizenry must put efforts to come out of this charade.

A. M. Chakravarty, Hyderabad

Hooch deaths

The hooch tragedy in Gujarat resulting in the death of over 50 people is most tragic. Gujarat, being the land of Mahatma Gandhi, has always been under prohibition. But for prohibition to succeed it is essential that it is accepted by the people or the state's machinery has the ability to enforce it fully. Unfortunately, this has never happened. As a result, people consume low-quality liquor or worse still, illicit brew which results in their deaths.

Partha's ill wealth

This has reference to the news "Victim of conspiracy, says Partha, Arpita sheds tears". Looking at the mountain of cash bundles and jewels and the list of immovable properties in the name of Partha Chatterjee and Arpita Banerjee and in others' names, it is mind boggling to comprehend the avarice of some political leaders. There is no doubt that the actress has been made a scapegoat or fall guy. When corrupt politicians are caught red handed by investigative agencies, then seeking emergency medical help in the form of admission in hospital has become a routine. That is farcical. On the one hand politicos shed crocodile tears about the poor people and on the other they indulge in clandestine activities amassing wealth. Partha Chatterjee's case fits the old proverb, "Covet all lose all".

R Sridharan, Chennai

Lot's in a name

When Chairman can be renamed as Chairperson in case a lady occupies the chair, what happens to Rashstrapitha and Rashtrapathi? It is certainly a misnomer to call a lady pitha or pathi. Gandhiji was correctly called Rashtrapitha. There is unlikely to be another male or female to occupy that exalted position in future. However, there could be more female occupants to adorn the chair of president of India. Perhaps, it is time to consider a more suitable name for a lady president, instead of calling a lady, Pathi.

Capt Raju Mathai, Kochi

Corrupt system

This is with reference to the latest news regarding "West Bengal School Service Commission Scam" wherein crores of rupees have been seized and several bigwigs are booked, including a minister. Everybody knows that in the present system of recruitment of Government employees, particularly as teaching faculty, lakhs, even crores, of rupees are systematically collected and distributed for every single appointment. That candidates were selected through the competitive examination process does not matter. For this shameful situation there is no meaning in blaming the officials/politicians who are collecting money. The basic fault lies in the wide gap that exists between the pay structure of government employees and private employees. In addition to that, government employment has come to mean job security and less accountability. Parties, in the states or at the Centre, regularly increase employees' wages to get votes. This has resulted in a great demand for government jobs, which is evident from the present statistics that for every single government job more than 32 individuals apply. And naturally, those in power or who are well connected will try to encash their connections.

Devi Awards hail women who have made world a better place

21st edition of the award ceremony saw 15 dynamic women being honoured for their path-breaking contributions to their respective professions

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

Chairman of the Board, The New Indian Express Group, Manoj Kumar Sonthalia, TNIE Editorial Director, Prabhu Chawla and politician-scholar Subramanian Swamy with recipients of Devi Awards in Kolkata

AFTER a glorious and high-voltage debut in 2019, Devi Awards have been one of the most anticipated events in Kolkata for the past two years. With the pandemic out of our way, Devi Awards was back in the city on Friday, July 29, attended by the glitterati and eminent personalities of the City of Joy.

The 21st edition of the award ceremony saw 15 dynamic women being awarded for their path-breaking contributions to their respective professions and for impacting society positively. The Devi Awards started with the vision to recognise contributions of women from all walks of life who have triumphed in their respective fields and uplifted their communities as they went along.

The event saw an engaging session with the chief guest, former Union minister Dr Subramanian Swamy. "Women have reached newer heights in terms of professions, but they, somewhere, still fall behind at different levels such as equal economic advantage. This award ceremony is an attempt to recognise their contributions," shared Dr Swamy.

He further added, "You see women competing with men at every stage. Women essentially are disadvantaged in the economic sphere and distressed in multiple ways beyond that. They are still at the edge of disadvantage in our country with cases of abuse and distress being reported every day. I believe women must be taught martial arts from a very young age so that they learn to identify these early on and grow up being their own defence."

This year's recipients included cricketer Jhulan Goswami, fashion designer Paromita Banerjee, scientist Sanghamitra Bandyopadhyay, pulmonologist Dr Sushmita Roychowdhury, filmmaker Nandita Roy, classical dancer Vandana Alase Hazra, head of Kolkata Creative Centre Richa Agarwal, industrialist and philanthropist Alka Bangur, cultural historian Tapati Guha Thakurta, social activist and entrepreneur Priyadarshini Hakim, actor Swastika Mukherjee, sportsperson and entrepreneur Sanaya Mehta Vyas, water conservationist Preeyam Budhia, author Debarati Mukhopadhyay and educationist Seema Sapru. The evening began with author and columnist Kaveree Bamzai and Director of The New Indian Express and Event Express Neha Sonthalia Periwal welcoming and introducing the Devi Awards. This was followed by a panel discussion, moderated by Bamzai, featuring eminent speaker Dr Shashi Panja, minister of Women and Child Development and Social Welfare, West Bengal.

During the ceremony, Jhulan Goswami, the former captain of Indian national women's cricket team, also spoke about the importance of Women's IPL in India. Jhulan was one of the award recipients of the night, whose biopic Chakda Xpress will soon hit the theatres. Actor Anushka Sharma will be stepping into the shoes of the cricketer in the movie.

As the recipients received their awards from Dr Swamy, they opened up about their success stories. While Preeyam Budhia, President of Patton Group and Co-founder of Café ICanFlyy, talked about her water conservation initiatives, dancer Vandana Alase Hazra opened up about how she feels having received this award.

"My responsibility towards society increases tenfold after receiving this award. I wanted to become a doctor, but I got married off at the age of fifteen. I completed degrees and achieved whatever I have while balancing kids and family. I feel nothing can stop women from achieving what they want to," said Alka Bangur, Managing Director of LNB Group, on receiving the honour.

Some of the noteworthy attendees at Devi Awards were actors Jaya Ahsan, Susmita Chatterjee, Tuhina Das, Priyanka Mondal, Anuradha Mukherjee, Tanika Basu, Anubhav Kanjilal, filmmakers Subhrajit Mitra, Indrasis Acharya, Arjunn Dutta, Sarmistha Maity and Rajdeep Paul. Some forces creating religious acrimony: Doval

SUMIT KUMAR SINGH @New Delhi

Some elements are trying to create an atmosphere that is vitiating the progress of India, said National Security Adviser Ajit Doval on Saturday warning that country has to be on guard against forces conspiring to disturb harmony and create unrest in the name of religion and ideology.

Speaking at an event organised by the All India Sufi Sajjadanashin Council (AISSC) in Delhi, where religious heads attended to discuss and pass a resolution for peace and unity, urged all citizens to work together to overcome their differences. "Some elements are trying to create an atmosphere that is vitiating the progress of India. They are creating acrimony and conflict in the name of religion and ideology, it is affecting the entire country while spilling over to other countries too ...," Doval said.

He stressed that to counter religious animosity "we have to work together and make every religious body feel like they are a part of India. We sail and sink together."

Doval also stated that there is an "atmosphere of conflict" in the world and the only way to tackle it is to "maintain the unity of the country together".

"Instead of being mute spectators, we have to work on the ground on our differences along with strengthening our voices. We have to make every sect of India feel that we are a country together, we are proud of it and that every religion can be professed with freedom here," said Doval. "The way India is progressing will benefit people from all religions," the NSA added. All India Sufi Sajjadanashin Council chairman Hazrat Syed Naseeruddin Chishty at the event called on banning radical organisations if there is evidence against them. "The need of the hour is to rein in and ban radical outfits. Be it any radical organisation, they should be banned if there is evidence against them," said Chishti.

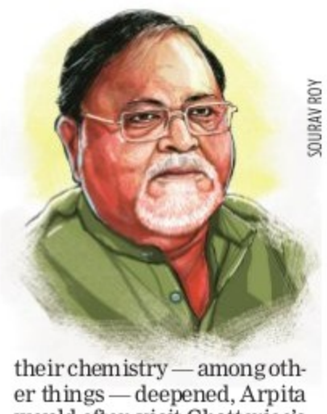
The aim of the conference was to have a rigorous discussion among the representatives of different faiths including Hindu, Islam, Christianity, Sikhism, Buddhism and Jain on "rising religious intolerance", the organisers said.

PARTHA CHATTERJEE

PENNY-PINCHING, HOARDER, GREEDY AND WORK-SHY

CHANDAN NANDY @New Delhi



SOURAV ROY

AFTER a 13-day customary mourning following his wife Babli's death in July 2017, the then industry minister of West Bengal and Trinamool Congress general secretary Partha Chatterjee threw a lavish lunch on the occasion of shraddh or ceremonial offering to a departed soul.

It was anything but ceremonial as hundreds of guests partook of the sumptuous lunch. The raw vegetables came from the plentiful fields of Nadia and the many varieties of fish came from Midnapore. "Some TMC workers bore the expenses. But Partha never reimbursed the partymen. His stinginess was staggering," a TMC leader said on the condition of anonymity.

That Chatterjee is said to be a miser is legion in the TMC, which also explains why he allegedly hoarded ₹52 crore in cash, thousands of dollars worth lakhs, jewellery valued at ₹4 crore. And then there are the apartments, some known while others still untraced.

Not just Kolkata but all of Bengal is agog with raunchy and anything-goes stories of 69-year-old Chatterjee and his 36-year-old belle Arpita Mukherjee. There is talk of another woman — a teacher — said to be close to Chatterjee. The Chatterjee-Arpita relationship blossomed some 10 years ago when a South Kolkata councillor introduced the two at a cultural show. As their chemistry — among other things — deepened, Arpita would often visit Chatterjee's Naktala residence in South Kolkata.

There were occasions when she would visit his office. On most occasions, however, they met at some of the well-appointed flats in Belghoria where Arpita is originally from. One flat was exclusively for eight pet dogs. A bungalow built over 10-cottah land, and named 'Apa' — short for Arpita and Partha — in Shantiniketan, was the couple's hinterland getaway. Arpita, however, never influenced Chatterjee's politics.

NEWSMAKER

He first contested the 2001 Assembly elections, winning the Behala West seat. This was followed by a string of victories — in 2006, 2011, 2016 and 2021. While Chatterjee's penny-pinching is the stuff of jokes — ribald and otherwise – his party colleagues frown upon his near total lack of attention to ministerial responsibilities of which he had many.

Centre, states have to come together to curb drug trafficking: Shah

HARPREET BAJWA @New Delhi

THE Centre has adopted a zero-tolerance policy towards narcotics and it is showing results now, Union Home Minister Amit Shah on Saturday said in Chandigarh on Saturday. Shah said when Narendra Modi became Prime Minister in 2014, the government adopted a zero-tolerance policy towards drugs.

He said that drugs adversely impact the younger generation and stressed that the government was committed to eliminating it. "We have to weed it out completely,'' he said.

After inaugurating a conference on drug trafficking and national security, Shah said the Centre would set up a forensic laboratory in Amritsar and a Narcotics Control Bureau (NCB) office. He also spoke about exclusive fast-track courts for cases dealing with drugs.

Shah assured the Punjab government of complete support from the Modi government in its fight against drugs. "Today Punjab CM is here. Everyone is saying drug problem is more in Punjab. It is a border state and if the problem is more, then we will have to make more efforts. If the state government allots land, the Centre will set up a forensics lab in Amritsar and a centre of NCB for training purpose," he said.

There has been a 200 per cent increase in the number of cases registered and 260 per cent rise in arrests during 2014 to 2021, Shah said.

Didi, KCR in race to lead Oppn front

PREETHA NAIR @New Delhi

THE presidential elections and the upcoming vice-presidential polls have brought to the fore the chinks in the Opposition ranks about the shape of a likely third front against the BJP in the 2024 general elections.

The two Opposition leaders — Telangana Chief Minister K Chandrashekhar Rao (KCR) and West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee appear to be vying for the lead role in making efforts to unite the Opposition.

Though Banerjee is in constant touch with CMs of non-BJP ruled states, sources say that Trinamool Congress's decision to not support the Opposition's joint candidate Margaret Alva as V-P candidate hasn't gone down well with many and it may mar its chances to lead the Opposition. Thus, it seems to have tilted the balancae in favour of KCR. He is emerging as the frontrunner in the leadership race. He himself is not leaving any stone unturned and has been wooing like-minded parties from both southern states and states i n the Hindi heartland.

KCR met SP chief Akhilesh Yadav in the capital on Friday and both the leaders are believed to have dicusssed the formation of a non-BJP and non-Congress front.

In the past too, KCR reached out to the SP leader several times and has even extended support during the recently held Uttar Pradesh Assembly elections. KCR's rapport with Akhilesh Yadav is being interpreted as part of his plans to consolidate his position in the Hindi heartland and national politics. TRS sources say that KCR's good relations with other leaders will give him more political mileage.

Earlier this year, Rao met leaders including Tamil Nadu MK Stalin (DMK), Uddhav Thackeray (Shiv Sena), and Sharad Pawar (NCP) Hemant Soren (JMM), and several others.

Banerjee, who is scheduled to visit Delhi next week, is also expected to meet some of the opposition leaders.

India seeks Israel help in containing water crisis

YESHI SELI @New Delhi

THE relations between India and Israel have been well established since the past three decades and the two nations have partnered in various projects, including defence, agriculture and technology. Now, India is seeking Israel's support in water management (India Israel water partnership) in order to contain the water crisis that many parts of the country is reeling under.

Nearly 6 per cent of the 1.38 billion people living in India don't have access to safe water. The outbreak of the pandemic has created an urgency to increase access to safe water.

It becomes pertinent on behalf of India to look into conserving and managing water and Israel was the best country to partner with on this front.

"Israel today recycles 90 per cent of its wastewater — which makes it the global leader when it comes to wastewater recycling. By adopting a holistic approach to water consumption that encompases good management, high tech development and public education, Israel has transformed from a water-parched nation to a global leader in the field of water," said a spokesperson from Israel.

India has a lot to emulate from their model and it is for the same reason that Israel has been chosen as the official partner of India in the upcoming Water Expo, that India is hosting next week.

"It is our pleasure to partner with India and this will be a great platform for Israeli and Indian companies to form partnerships and explore future collaborations. Israeli companies will share their innovative water solutions, best practices and technologies,'' says NaorGilon, ambassador of Israel to India.

Four water experts from Israel will be visiting India to share their model for water management, policy regulations, water technologies, R&D implementation under the India-Israel water partnership.

It is learnt that around eight leading Israeli water companies will showcase their technical knowhow.

Guj court refuses bail to Teesta, Sreekumar

DILIP SINGH KSHATRIYA
@ Ahmedabad

A sessions court in Ahmedabad on Saturday rejected the bail applications of activist Teesta Setalvad and former Director General of Police, R B Sreekuamr, arrested for allegedly fabricating documents to frame innocent people in 2002 riots cases. Additional principal judge Dilip Kumar Thakkar pronounced the order on the bail pleas, saying the accused apparently aimed to "destabilise" the Gujarat government and defame the state for their ulterior motives."

The court observed, "The applicants-accused have in conspiracy with others with a view to defame the then CM and others made accusations against Government that post-Godhra riots were sponsored by the Government and thereby defamed the State not only in the country but in the world also and with ulterior motive thereby obtained personal goal and monetary benefit from one political faction as well as other countries…"

Setalvad and Sreekumar were arrested after the Supreme Court on June 24 dismissed a petition filed by Zakia Jafri, the wife of slain former Congress MP Ehsaan Jafri who was killed during the Gujarat riots in 2002. Former IPS officer Sanjiv Bhatt, a third accused, had not applied for bail. He was already in jail in another case when he was arrested.

The government had argued that Zakia was used as a tool by the accused for their vested interest, and that the NGO of Teesta, named Citizen for Justice was registered after the post-Godhra riot cases.

The court noted that Sreekumar and Bhatt were witnesses in Jafri's 2006 complaint, and so, "if this applicants-accused would be enlarged on bail then definitely it will tamper or hamper the witnesses and influence the investigation."

Taking note of how Teesta tried to create pressure on the media, the court said, "she had tried to pressurize the media and she had written a letter to Amicus Curiae, etc. conduct which itself shows that she is having nature to derail the investigation in the present case if she is enlarged on bail."

Bengal: ED freezes 8 bank accounts suspected to hold siphoned money

Shell companies set up to channel crores procured from job aspirants, says agency

PRANAB MONDAL @ Kolkata

THE Enforcement Directorate (ED) on Saturday froze eight bank accounts where money, suspected to be proceeds of crime of alleged the school recruitment scam, was deposited.

The central agency has come across several shell companies, set up to siphon off several crores of rupees allegedly procured from the school teachers job aspirants.

"The bank accounts were fictitious and opened in the name of several companies and associates of former minister of West Bengal cabinet and suspended Trinamool Congress heavyweight Partha Chatterjee and his close aide Arpita Mukherjee. We are yet to ascertain the total volume of money deposited in the accounts at present," said an ED official.

The central agency came to know about a real estate company and an entertainment agency, which was used to park the money, suspected to be proceeds of crime of the recruitment scam.

Chatterjee and Arpita were arrested last week in connection with the alleged recruitment scam.

During the course of interrogation, Arpita, from whose south Kolkata apartment cash ₹21.9 crore was recovered, said the rooms in which the money was stashed used to be locked and keys used to be with Chatterjee's men.

"His (Chatterjee's) men used to come, keep the money and leave after locking the rooms of my apartments. I had no access to those rooms," Arpita reportedly told the sleuths of the central agency which is probing into the money trail in the alleged scam.

Two days after recovering the huge amount of currency notes from Arpita's south Kolkata flat, the investigative agency officials carried out a search in her Belgharia apartment in North 24-Parganas and recovered cash ₹27.9 crore and jewellery and gold weighing 6 kg.

"Other than cash and jewellery, we found at least 20 immovable properties in the name of Chatterjee, Arpita and pseudo names. We are expecting to unearth more assets which were made illegally," said another ED official.

A team of ED officials arrived at Arpita's south Kolkata apartment on Saturday and carried out a search again. Pranab Bhattacharya, the driver of Arpita, said the model-actor used to ride a Mini Cooper car. "But I have not seen the car for the past three months," he said.

Bhattacharya confirmed that Arpita used to visit Chatterjee's Behala office and Naktala residence frequently. "Chatterjee, too, used to visit Arpita's apartment occasionally. In the south Kolkata housing complex, she has three apartments," he added.

The driver, however, said he never saw that bags stashed with money were kept in the car when he was on the wheels. "Other than in Kolkata, Arpita also went to Bolpur and Santiniketan with Chatterjee and her family members," Bhattacharya said.

The central investigative agency has found a number of properties at Santiniketan and Bolpur in Bengal in the name of Chatterjee and Arpita.

The bank accounts were fictitious and opened in the name of several firms and associates of Partha Chatterjee and Arpita Mukherjee. We are yet to ascertain the volume of money deposited in the accounts

Nawjore Sarkar: CPM's challenge to govt

The CPI(M) has decided to launch a new initiative, titled Nawjore Sarkar (eyes on the government), as a part of its attempts to unearth alleged "incidents of irregularities and corruption" of the Mamata Banerjee-led government. The decision comes at a time when the Trinamool Congress-led government finds itself on the backfoot with the arrest of industry minister Partha Chatterjee in connection with the alleged recruitment scams in schools. "We will encourage the general people to share their grievances and allegations against the government with us. Once the details are collected, we shall share them on social media and other platforms," CPI(M) state secretary Mohammad Selim said.

18K teachers' posts lie vacant in govt schools

Posts of more than 18,000 teachers are vacant in government-aided schools in Bengal, the education department has informed the high court. In response to an order by Justice Abhijit Gangopadhyay, the state education department filed an affidavit stating details about the vacant posts of teachers in schools. In the recent past, CM Mamata Banerjee had said intervention by the court had stalled recruitment in schools. Justice Gangopadhyay sought to know which order was preventing the government from filling up these vacant posts. In its affidavit, the education department did not mention anything about any court order stalling the recruitments.

Vehicles over 15 yrs old to be phased out

The National Green Tribunal (NGT) has ordered the West Bengal government to phase out within six months all vehicles, both private and commercial, that are over 15 years old. The NGT's eastern zone bench said the state also has to phase out all public transport vehicles below BS IV emission norms in this time frame. If the NGT's order has to be followed, the transport authorities will have to eliminate 92 lakh vehicles within six months. Environmentalists said the task is huge. Even if the state government gets rid of the vehicles, the auto market may not be able to provide replacements within the short time.

Booker Prize winner's event cancelled over controversy

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

Novel Ret Samadhi, which won its author Geetanjali Shree this year's Booker Prize, has courted controversy over alleged objectionable references to Lord Shiva and Goddess Parvati, leading to the last-minute cancellation of an event to felicitate Geetanjali in Agra on Saturday.

"The event was called off due to a controversy over a complaint against the International Booker prize winner Geenjali Shree," Anil Shukla of Rangeela, one of the organisers of the event said.

He said a police complaint was filed by one Sandeep Kumar Pathak in Hathras, claiming that the author has given objectionable reference to Lord Shiva and Goddess Parvati in her book, which has hurt the religious sentiments of Hindus.

In May, Geetanjali became the first Indian author to win the International Booker Prize. Her novel Ret Samadhi was translated into English as Tomb of Sand by American translator Daisy Rockwell.

'Humiliated' by Punjab health minister, VC resigns

HARPREET BAJWA @ Chandigarh

IN a major embarrassment for the AAP government in Punjab, Dr Raj Bahadur, Vice Chancellor of Baba Farid University of Health Sciences (BFUHS), quit his post a day after he was humiliated by state Health Minister Chetan Singh Jouramajra.

Dr Bahadur, a noted spinal surgeon of the country, was "forced" by the minister to lie on a dirty hospital bed during an inspection.

Expressing resentment against the "rude behavior" of the minister and his secretary, the Director Principal of Amritsar Medical College and Medicinal Superintendent GND Hospital have also resigned. Punjab CM Bhagwant Mann has asked the VC to reconsider his decision.

In his resignation letter to the CM, Dr Bahadur said he would like to be relieved from services as the atmosphere was not conducive for his work. "Before being an administrator, I am a doctor first, and a doctor deserves respect," he said. The latest episode follows months of face-offs between employees of government departments and MLAs.

The minister's unusual behavior was apparently in response to complaints that the hospital lacked hygiene. In a video that went viral, Jouramajra is heard asking Dr Bahadur: "It's all in your hands, but what is this?" One of the minister's companions was seen lifting up the mattress and pointing to its poor condition.

The episode has led to a spate of resignations. Amritsar Government Medical College Director Principal Dr Rajiv Devgan and its associated hospital Guru Nanak Dev Hospital medical superintendent Dr Kanwardeep Singh have quit their posts citing workload. Both have expressed their wish to work for their parent departments. However, sources point that the resignations are a part of the resentment brewing in the state medical fraternity.

The Indian Medical Association and Indian Ortho Association have condemned the minister's behaviour, saying the medical fraternity across India has been insulted. The Punjab Civil Medical Service Association has also criticized the treatment. Opposition parties have hit out at the AAP government. Punjab Congress chief Amrinder Singh Raja Warring demanded the minister's resignation. "The Health Minister's behaviour is highly condemnable. The Minister must apologize," Warring tweeted.

Shiromani Akali Dal chief Sukhbir Singh Badal said: "Have spoken to Dr Bahadur & expressed solidarity with him besides assuring him full support to the entire medical fraternity which is being targeted by AAP ministers & MLAs."

BJP leader Sunil Jakhar said the treatment meted out to Dr Bahadur is shameful.

In his resignation letter to the Chief Minister, Dr Raj Bahadur has said he would like to be relieved from services as the atmosphere was not conducive for his work. "Before being an administrator, I am a doctor first, and a doctor deserves respect," he said.

3 J'khand Cong MLAs detained with cash

PRANAB MONDAL @ Kolkata

A vehicle with a board displaying "MLA Jamtara, Jharkhand," in which three Congress MLAs were travelling, was intercepted on the national highway in Howrah on Saturday evening, after which the police found the boot of the car stashed with bundles of cash in denomination of Rs 500 currency notes. Police detained the three MLAs — Irfan Ansari, Bixal Kongari and Rajesh Kachhap — and currency counting machines were brought to assess the volume of cash.

Swati Bhangalia, the superintendent of police, Howrah rural, said they were armed with a specific tip-off, based on which the vehicle was intercepted at Panchla in Howrah. "Five persons, including three Congress MLAs, were travelling in the vehicle. We intercepted the vehicle heading towards Jharkhand from Kolkata and a search ended with the recovery of the cash. We detained the three MLAs as they failed to come up with satisfactory explanation about the origin of the cash," she said.

It is yet to be ascertained whether the volume of cash has any link with the ongoing probe into the alleged recruitment scam in schools which led to the arrests of TMC heavyweight and former minister Partha Chatterjee and his close aide, Arpita Mukherjee. A volume of cash worth Rs 49.8 crore was recovered from Arpita's two apartments.

Trinamool Congress spokesperson Kunal Ghosh said only Congress leaders in Bengal would be able to say anything about the source of money and the purpose of transporting the money.

"Only the state Congress president Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury and other leaders of the party can say about the cash found in the car in which three MLAs of their party were travelling," he said.

"Huge amounts of cash recovered from a car @INCIndia MLA from Jharkhand-intercepted at Howrah. Apparently, 3 INC MLAs were travelling in the car. Is ED going after only a select few?," the TMC tweeted.

The Congress has launched a blistering attack on the TMC on the issue of Chatterjee's arrest and recovery of cash from Arpita's houses.

BJP leaders condemn Friday as weekly holiday in Bihar schools

RAMASHANKAR @ Patna

JP Nadda with Giriraj Singh in Patna on Saturday | PTI

THE closure of some schools on Fridays has led to a fresh controversy in Bihar, with the ruling JD-U underplaying the issue and Union minister Giriraj Singh calling such a move akin to Sharia laws.

"Observing holiday on Friday instead of Sunday is a violation of law. Holiday on Friday is like Sharia law. Earlier, such a practice was followed in Uttar Pradesh, and now it has surfaced in Bihar," Singh said on Saturday.

The Nitish government has asked authorities to submit a report on school closure on Fridays. "Sunday has been a holiday since Independence," Singh remarked. He is in Patna for national-level meet of BJP's organisations.

Around 500 government schools in Bihar, particularly in Muslim-dominated Kishanganj, Katihar, Araria and Purnea, have declared a holiday on Friday.

Several BJP leaders have objected to shifting of the holiday. BJP MP Rakesh Sinha said, "Government holidays are not declared on the basis of religion. Any violation is a communal decision."

Deputy CM Tarkishore Prasad, who comes from Katihar district, said, "There is no need to intervene in the matter." He said Education Minister Vijay Choudhary has assured him that the matter is being looked into.

JD-U parliamentary board chairman Upendra Kushwaha tweeted that holidays are given on Ashtami and Pratipada in Sanskrit schools.

Row over China meters in Meghalaya

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @ Guwahati

THE Trinamool Congress has alleged that the Meghalaya government bent rules and compromised on the country's security by allowing an Indian company to install Chinese smart meters in the state.

The Centre had in 2020 made an amendment to General Financial Rules, 2017 that banned bidders from countries sharing a land border with India on grounds of national security.

TMC leader Saket Gokhale said the smart meters being installed in Meghalaya were manufactured by Shenzhen-based Inhemeter. State power minister Prestone Tynsong said REC Ltd is the technical agency. "When the tender process gets over, it will not end with MeECL. It will come to the power department, which will send it to Delhi. The REC will check whether this material is genuine or not," he said.

After Indore, now seniors in trouble for ragging in Ratlam medical college

ANURAAG SINGH @ Bhopal

DAYS after MGM Medical College in Indore was rocked by complaints of ragging, the issue has now engulfed the government medical college in Ratlam district. A video of junior students standing in a queue and being slapped by their seniors apparently at the boys' hostel of the college has gone viral. The 2.51-minute video also shows one of the senior students holding a junior by the hair.

The college's anti-ragging committee has recommended the suspension of the concerned senior students from the classes for six months, and their permanent expulsion from the hostel. The committee has also recommended lodging a criminal case against them.

A senior professor of the medical college said the video of the 2021 batch students being ragged by their seniors was submitted to them by the hostel warden on Friday. The matter was then reported to the college administration through the National Medical Commission helpline, after which a meeting of the college's anti-ragging committee was convened.

This is the second incident of ragging reported at the college hostel in two months. The senior students found involved in it were earlier expelled permanently from the hostel and suspended for three months from the classes. But that doesn't seem to have had any deterrent effect on the students.

COLLEGE TO TAKE STRICT ACTION

The college's anti-ragging committee has recommended the suspension of the concerned senior students from the classes for six months, and their permanent expulsion from the hostel.

The Ratlam medical college, hostel and hospital are situated in a single campus, which also houses a police outpost under the jurisdiction of the Ratlam Industrial Area police station.

However, until now, the matter hasn't been reported by the college administration to the cops, police station in-charge OP Singh told this newspaper on Saturday.

When the mediapersons went to the college campus on Saturday, they spotted liquor bottles lying near the hostel.

This incident of alleged ragging comes just days after the Indore Police had on July 24 lodged a case against unidentified MBBS students of MGM Medical College for ragging juniors, including forcing them to perform unnatural sexual acts.

ENERGY FIRM GAZPROM CUTS OFF GAS TO LATVIA

MOSCOW

RUSSIAN energy giant Gazprom Saturday suspended gas supplies to Latvia, a day after a jail holding Ukrainian prisoners of war was bombed leaving scores dead.

"Today, Gazprom suspended its gas supplies to Latvia... due to violations of the conditions" of purchase, the company said on Telegram.

Gazprom drastically cut gas deliveries to Europe via the Nord Stream pipeline on Wednesday to about 20 percent of its capacity. It had reduced gas flows to Europe twice in June. The Russian state-run company had earlier announced it would choke supply to 33 million cubic metres a day – half the amount it has been delivering since service resumed last week after 10 days of maintenance work. European Union states have accused Russia of squeezing supplies in retaliation for Western sanctions over Moscow's intervention in Ukraine.

Gazprom cited the halted operation of one of the last two operating turbines for the pipeline due to the "technical condition of the engine".

Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov has blamed EU sanctions for the limited supply. The EU this week agreed a plan to reduce gas consumption in solidarity with Germany, where the Nord Stream pipeline runs to, warning of Russian "blackmail".

Russian strikes continued to rain down on Ukrainian towns and cities on Saturday, a day after Russia's defence ministry accused Kyiv of striking a prison in Russian-held territory with US-supplied long-range missiles, in an "egregious provocation" designed to stop captured soldiers from surren-dering. It said Saturday that the dead included Ukrainian forces who had surrendered after weeks of fighting off Russia's brutal bombardment of the sprawling Azovstal steelworks in the port city of Mariupol.

The defence ministry said 50 Ukrainian prisoners were killed and 73 were taken to hospital with serious injuries, adding: "All political, legal and moral responsibility for this bloody massacre of Ukrainians lies with Zelensky personally, his criminal regime and Washington which backs them." AFP

Is India's edtech bubble bursting?

Even top firms that closed huge funding rounds are now struggling to raise a few million

UMA KANNAN @ Bengaluru

THE edtech industry, which witnessed a massive boom during Covid times, as students and parents preferred online classes, is now battling numerous challenges. So, they are forced to lay off employees, open offline centres and restructure their businesses. Some edtech giants are offering massive discounts on their courses to attract as many students as possible.

Also with funding hard to come by, even top edtech companies that closed huge funding rounds with ease are now struggling to raise a few million-dollar rounds. Edtech giant BYJU'S announced an $800 million funding in March this year. Of the total, the company is yet to receive nearly $250 million from its two investors. BYJU'S spokesperson attributed the delay to macroeconomic reasons.

Do these signs indicate that the country's education technology bubble is about to burst?

Aggressive selling comes a cropper

"In the first place, the context in which the edtech companies grew has changed with children going back to physical classrooms. However, the problem for edtech companies is much beyond the context change. The parents who had tried the service in Covid times are not renewing, primarily because they haven't seen a positive impact on their kids," said Ganesh Mahadevan, Partner - Thinksynq solutions.

Mahadevan, who is a mentor to several start-ups, said the whole process of sourcing customers, selling the right expectations and ensuring delivery has been short charged with aggressive mis-selling. Due to this, the parents are deserting the edtech companies in droves leading to business downsizing and cash flow challenges resulting in delayed refunds.

As he pointed out, many edtech companies are into mis-selling courses. A news agency citing sources recently reported that the Ministry of Consumer Affairs pulled up edtech firms for aggressive mis-selling of courses to parents.

Immediately, Indian Edtech Consortium (IEC) under the aegis of Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI) issued clarification around mis-selling and misleading advertisements by these companies. IEC said it has created a two-tier grievance redressal mechanism that has been actively resolving consumers' complaints. According to the Advertising Standards Council of India (ASCI), which resolves issues in advertisements, education remains the single largest violative sector, followed by healthcare and personal care. ASCI 'Complaints Insights 2021-22' data shows about 33% of complaints are filed against the education sector. Edtech companies promote their courses by offering deep discounts.

In some edtech companies, teachers also act as sales representatives as they are even offered cash incentives as high as ₹5,000 if a student they referred to, takes 5th class with the edtech company.

"If a student wants to pursue a course, they are given trials. If the student is satisfied with the trial, parents enroll them in regular classes. For instance, of the 10 trials, if 3-5 are converted into regular classes, a teacher receives money accordingly," said a teacher with an edtech giant.

At the same time, these teachers have to fulfill certain metrics. "Switching on the camera during classes is mandatory and we need to encourage students by making use of 'claps' 'Hats off' and other icon images. We need to keep classes very interactive and have to be punctual too," said the teacher.

Also, if teachers are not punctual, after three warnings, some edtech firms even fire them immediately.

From online to offline

From India's most-valued edtech unicorn to emerging edtech companies, all have started offline centres. BYJU'S, Unacademy, Vedantu and Physicswallah have opened many offline tuition centres to attract more students.

People have realised the importance of face-to-face interaction for higher engagement levels and motivation, said Ranjita Raman, CEO, Jaro Education

Many edtech companies were started during pandemic times, and these companies started focusing only on growth without looking at stability.

The edtech sector has realised that 360-degree attention is required in the business. This realisation has led to layoffs and restructuring. The fundings are phase-based funding, which is target and revenue driven.

The approach that edtech took by focusing on only scaling the business and not looking at profitability has led to a significant dent in revenue structure, causing a delay in the various funding rounds, Raman said.

"Companies have started taking thoughtful steps in marketing spending. The marketing budget was reduced from 11.6% in 2019 to 8% in 2021 of the total revenue," Raman added.

Edtech firms charge anywhere between Rs 3,000 and Rs 35,000, depending on number of classes and syllabus. For NEET and JEE, it's Rs 1 lakh upwards. Also, many are focusing on the hybrid model.

Last month, Unacademy announced the launch of its first two offline learning centres in Kota, Rajasthan. The Unacademy Centres will facilitate the offline classes for learners and will extend access to top educators in the NEET-UG, IT JEE, and Foundation (9-10) course categories, it said.

It aims to enroll up to 15,000 learners in the first batch across all the upcoming Unacademy Centres in the 9 cities -Kota, Jaipur, Ahmedabad, Chandigarh, Patna, Pune, Bengaluru, Delhi, and Lucknow. The company has onboarded over 30 top educators for its Kota centres. Kota is now buzzing with poaching of teachers, as many edtech companies have started offline centres in the city.

With multi-functional café, a massive library, doubt solving zones along with several classrooms and functional zones, Unacademy Centres cater everything to attract more students.

Edtech companies must transparently make their customers aware of all financial arrangements. They should adopt a self-regulatory code and practice the same, said Rameesh Kailasam, CEO, IndiaTech.

"The sector needs to communicate clearly and ensure that students are not falsely misled. More transparency and clarity are required from edtech in terms of accountability. While growth in business is undeniably critical, it is also of paramount importance to allow consumers to make more informed choices and decisions while being protected," he added.

THE PMLA WEAPON: PERFECTING THE PROCESS AS PUNISHMENT

GURBIR SINGH

INDISCRIMINATE arrests and beinglocked up in jail without trial was always the lot of the downtrodden and those without a voice. But now arbitrary detention has come to haunt those with means, businessmen and politicians who have fallen out with the establishment.

As individual liberties guaranteed under the Constitution shrink, it is chilling to realize the judiciary – mandated to protect personal freedom and the rule of law –is increasingly merging with the executive, and finding 'reasonable grounds' for the invasion of liberty.

What better example to illustrate this than the recent judgement by the Supreme Court upholding the draconian provisions of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA)! The PMLA, enacted in 2002 and implemented on July 1, 2005 for the laudatory purpose of flushing out economic crime, has in recent days been 'weaponized' via its implementing agency – the Enforcement Directorate.

Though the PMLA was enacted by the NDA when L K Advani was Home Minister, it was ironically the Congress that implemented the Act in 2005. The PMLA was earlier a slow train in the Congress era; it has been fast-tracked since the Narendra Modi government came to power.

Sample this. The ED carried out 3,010 raids and attached 'proceeds of crime' worth Rs 99,356 crore under the PMLA over the last 8 years, since the NDA came to power in 2014. In contrast, only 112 raids were conducted and Rs 5,346 crore impounded between 2004-05 and 2013-14 during the tenure of the Congress-led United Progressive Alliance (UPA).

However, nobody is bothered about convictions. Just 23 persons have been actually convicted in the 5,422 cases registered under the PMLA since it was implemented 17 years ago. Significantly, the last financial year has been the most 'productive' with 1,180 cases registered in 2021-22.

This only proves Chief Justice N V Ramana's constant refrain – the process is the punishment! Since PMLA's inception, hundreds of establishments have been raided, thousands arrested, 992 cases prosecuted, Rs 869 crores confiscated, and over Rs one lakh crore of property attached / seized. And yet just 23 convictions! This means hundreds of those arrested, after the naming-and-shaming game, have been released, probably along with their property!

Rubber-stamping

The latest judgment by the apex court bench led by Justice A M Khanwilkar not only validates the use of the PMLA against the 'heinous' crime of money laundering, but upholds the myriad amendments since 2014 that has widened the powers of the state.

Section 5 of the PMLA – which lays down powers regarding provisional attachment and confiscation of properties – was amended in 2015 and now empowers the ED to make emergency attachments of properties without a registered criminal case. The petitioners' case, that this does away with the 'due process' of recording a FIR of an offence before confiscation or attachment of the property, has been rejected by the court.

The ED has extensive powers under Sections 16, 17 and 18 to enter any premise and carry out search and seizure operations. A 2019 amendment further widened these powers by doing away with the necessity of a court warrant. The pleas that absence of sufficient safeguards renders these provisions arbitrary and open to misuse were dismissed by the court. The court contended that the process of searches and seizure under PMLA is not only for the purpose of inquiry but also for preventing crime.

Guilty until proven innocent

The Supreme Court has also rejected the challenge to Sections 24 and 45on the grounds they reverse the burden of proof, violating the cornerstone of Anglo-Saxon law – that one is innocent until proven guilty.

Section 24 states that a court will presume an accused to be involved in money laundering unless proved contrary. Likewise, Section 45 imposes two conditions for bail in PMLA cases — first, a court must be satisfied that the accused is not guilty of money-laundering and, second, he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail.

Significantly, these twin bail conditions were struck down by the Supreme Court earlier in 2017 where a bench of Justices Rohinton Nariman and Sanjay Kishan Kaul said the 'twintest' was unconstitutional and arbitrary. "We must not forget that Sec 45 is a drastic provision which turns on its head the presumption of innocence which is fundamental to a person accused of any offence."

The ruling was negated by an amendment in 2018 which brought back the 'twin bail' conditions. Now that has been sanctified by the Supreme Court. It has said the presumption of 'innocence' is not a constitutional right, and that "presumption can be interdicted by a law made by Parliament / Legislature."

The only glimmer of hope for those challenging the arbitrary provisions of the PMLA, are the petitions that have questioned the pushing through of the PMLA amendments as 'money bills'. These have been referred to a Constitutional, seven-judge bench. If petitioners Jairam Ramesh and others succeed, the amendments via the Finance Act can be struck down as 'unconstitutional'.

Beyond this legal challenge, street protests to reverse the PMLA provisions are unlikely. The rich and mighty in ED's line of sight will have to muddle through on a wing and a prayer.

1 lakh Scorpio-N booked in 30 min

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU
@ New Delhi

MAHINDRA & MAHINDRA (M&M) has claimed that it recorded 1,00,000 bookings for the all-new Scorpio-N within 30 minutes of booking commencement at 11 am on Saturday, translating into an ex-showroom value of ₹18,000 crore ($2.3 billion).

It even said that enthusiasm for the SUV was so high that it recorded 25,000 bookings within the first one minute. This claim, however, was challenged by many prospective buyers on social media who said that M&M's payment gateway partner was unable to process the request in the first few minutes when the booking commenced. Few also questioned whether the automaker is just creating hype as it would only be able to deliver 20,000 units in 2022.

Responding to this, M&M chairman Anand Mahindra tweeted, "There was a brief glitch with the payment gateway provider. We assure all customers that their time stamp prior to payment is duly recorded, so each customer will have their rightful place in the order sequence..."

The deliveries of Scorpio-N will begin on September 26, 2022, onwards. Over 20,000 units of the SUV are planned for delivery by December 2022 wherein Z8L variant will be prioritised. Mahindra will inform the customers about their delivery date by the end of August 2022.

M&M also said that the booking website handled the huge rush of orders well, but there was a brief glitch with the payment gateway provider. It also assured the customers that their time stamp prior to payment is duly recorded on the booking platform, so each customer will have their rightful place in the order sequence and accordingly the first 25,000 will be considered for introductory prices based on this sequence, it said. Prices for the subsequent bookings will be as per the prices prevalent at the time of delivery. M&M has priced Scorpio-N between ₹11.99 lakh-₹21.45 lakh (introductory price). Scorpio-N 4WD variants will be available at an introductory price of ₹2.45 lakhs over the respective 2WD variants.

Scorpio-N is offered with two engine options in India. The first gets a 2.0-litre mStallion turbocharged petrol motor, which churns out 197 bhp of power and 380 Nm of torque. The second engine option is a 2.2-litre mHawk diesel unit that puts out up to 173 bhp of power and 400 Nm of torque, depending on the variant. The SUV comes with a 6-speed MT and a 6-speed torque-converter AT with Mahindra's 4 XPLOR 4WD system.

5G services by Oct first week, says Vaishnaw

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

5G services in the country are expected to begin by the first week of October, said telecom minister Ashwini Vaishnaw on Saturday.

Addressing the press at an event in Mumbai, the minister said India will have much faster rollout of 5G compared to many other geographies because other costs are significantly under control. "Once auction is completed, we will immediately start allocating spectrum to the companies. After allocation, the companies will have to install equipment and this process normally takes 7 to 8 months. However, we have already asked them to do it soon. Hopefully by October we will start the services of 5G," said Vaishnaw. He said even after so many years the US has just 50,000 5G sites, but India is expecting to roll out within the next two years.

BITTER-SWEET SYMPHONY

Tea & paan shop owner's son injures elbow while lifting 139kg to settle for silver, misses top prize by just 1kg

FIROZ MIRZA @Chennai

MAHADEV Ananda Sargar was busy catering to his customers at his tea, snacks and paan shop in Shinde Mala locality of Sangli (Maharashtra) just like any other day on Saturday morning. There seems to be a calmness around him but deep down in his heart, he was a bit nervous and restless. The reason — his weightlifter son Sanket was scheduled to take platform and vie for medal at the ongoing 2022 Commonwealth Games in Birmingham in the afternoon.

"We don't have a big television at our place so my wife Rajshree and daughter Kajol will watch Sanket in action at Digvijay Weightlifting Institute. It's where Sanket started training in 2013-14. His trainer and owner of the institute, Mayur Sinhasane, has set up a screen so that other trainees can watch Sanket's exploits," Mahadev told this daily.

Despite Sanket making his CWG debut, his father said he wouldn't be able to see him perform as there is no one to take care of the shop. He might have come up with a valid reason to skip the event but trainer Mayur believes the father becomes nervous whenever he watches his son in action and that's why he avoided watching him live.

"It can happen to anyone. Mahadev ji doesn't want to be here (institute) as the competition can make him jittery. But it's okay. Everybody has his own way of dealing with pressure and this is Mahadev ji's way of dealing with pressure," said Mayur. All those fears and anxiety gave way to excitement and ecstasy a few hours later as Sanket opened India's account at the Birmingham event with a silver medal in the 55kg weight category (113kg snatch and 135kg clean & jerk). He was leading the field until his second attempt in clean and jerk when he failed to lift 139kg. He also injured his right elbow during the attempt but tried to lift 142kg in his third and final attempt but to no avail.

His closest rival from Malaysia Aniq bin Kasdan won the gold with the narrowest margin of one kg. Sri Lanka's Dilanka Ishuru Kumar took home the bronze.

"I am sad because I wanted to stand for gold. I have been training to come here for gold for four years now. I trained myself in such a way that I had to secure gold. I am a little disappointed and a little happy that I got a medal but I am a lot sadder," said Sanket after finishing on the podium.

Sanket's younger sibling Kajol is also a weightlifter and recently she became the first gold medallist at the 2021 Khelo India Youth Games held in Panchkula, Haryana.

For Sanket, it all started when he was in Class 7. "His father brought him to our institute. Initially, he trained under my father for a couple of years and then left weightlifting as he was supposed to take Class X examinations. When he came back, I started training him. We prepared a roadmap for next five years as our goal was to qualify for the CWG," informed Mayur.

The locality where Sanket's family lives was quite notorious back in 1980s and 90s for criminal activities. It was also one of the most underdeveloped areas in Sangli. All these factors made father Mahadev worried about his children — two sons and a daughter. Also, he doesn't want Sanket to take over the shop from him. Instead, he wants him to excel in sports and get a government job. "A few lifters from the locality had already made it big and got government jobs. That's what probably motivated Mahadev ji," opined the trainer.

However, there was a time when Sanket's schedule was quite tight. He used to wake up at early in the morning to open the shop and then reach institute to train before leaving for college. "His day used to start quite early and by the time he reached the institute for the evening session, he was exhausted. He couldn't train properly. That's when I requested his father to relieve him of shop responsibilities," said Mayur.

The first success for Sanket came in 2017 when he won 50kg gold in the state level school championship. The trainer then set a target for Sanket in 55kg to ensure he has a chance to qualify for the Birmingham Games. The hard work put in by the lifter and his team paid off as he finally got selected for the national camp in 2021. He eventually made it to the CWG when he set a Commonwealth record by lifting a total of 256kg at the Singapore Weightlifting International in February earlier this year.

Mirabai's golden time continues at CWG

FIROZ MIRZA @Chennai

TOKYO Olympic silver medallist Mirabai Chanu continued her dominance at the Commonwealth Games as she clinched 49kg gold by setting Games Record in all three sections (snatch, clean & jerk and overall) in Birmingham on Saturday. Her gold also turned out to be country's first in this quadrennial event.

She set the tone by lifting 84kg in her first snatch attempt and then matched her personal best of 88kg in the next. Though she tried to touch the 90kg mark but couldn't succeed. However, her second attempt lift was 12kg more than the second-best lifter in the field, Marie Hanitra Roilya Ranaivosoa from Mauritius.

The clean and jerk section was no different as the former world champion lifted 109kg in her first attempt and then improved the show by lifting 113kg. She tried 115kg in the third and last attempt but did not succeed. Even here, Mirabai's best was 17kg more than the Mauritian lifter. Her overall lift of 201kg (88kg & 113kg) was also Games Record.

The medal is Chanu's third at the CWG as she had also won a 48kg silver in 2014. Canada's lifter won bronze.

Gururaja wins bronze

Gold in any Games is always going to be difficult. Even for weightlifter Gururaja P given the competition in the 61kg weight category. The Karnataka lifter, however, wanted to change the medal colour from silver at the Gold Coast CWG four years ago in 56kg to something more shining. But as was expected the Malaysian lifter Muhamad Aznil Bin Bidin proved too tough. Given his modest show in the snatch section, as he was lying fourth, Gururaja missed out on a silver medal and won bronze with a total lift of 269kg (118kg in snatch and 151kg in clean and jerk). The Malaysian lifter grabbed the gold medal with a Games record lift of 285kg (127+158). Morea Baru of Papua New Guinea bagged the silver.

While his silver in 2018 opened India's account, the bronze on Saturday added to India's tally after Sanket Sargar pocketed 55kg silver. At one point of time, Canada's lifter Youri Simard was giving Gururaja a tough competition. Despite lifting his personal best of 148kg in his second attempt during the clean and jerk section, Gururaja was made to increase the weight in his third attempt to surge ahead of his Canadian rival. And he did it without much fuss as he lifted 151kg in his final attempt to seal the bronze.

With improved pace & endurance, Renuka's swing back to the fore

GOMESH S @Chennai

WHEN Renuka Singh Thakur was selected for the New Zealand tour and the ODI World Cup that followed earlier in January, it was on the back of her consistent performances in the senior one-dayers and the challengers in the domestic season. She was keen on making the most of every opportunity she gets. She wanted to make her mother Suntia Thakur proud and smile.

But things don't always go as planned. Although she did make her debut in the bilateral series against White Ferns, Renuka did not get a game throughout the World Cup. Even as Jhulan Goswami was injured, India went in with an extra spinner in their last league game against South Africa. Renuka had to watch India get knocked out early from the bench.

Despite her disappointment, Renuka did not say a word about not getting to play as she returned to the domestic season for the senior T20 league for Railways. "Any player would have expected an opportunity, but not once did she mention it," recalls former India cricketer and Railways head coach Nooshin Al Khadeer.

"She was very normal, she knew what her role was and what was expected of her. I have never seen that girl crib about anything at all. In fact, the only thing she came back and told me was 'my fielding has now improved even more'. People might not rate her because of the kind of attitude she possesses, but she is a smart cricketer. The good thing about her is she takes everything in her stride," said Nooshin.

And that is exactly what she did after the World Cup. She worked on her fitness, tried to improve her endurance and pace, while also focussing on her swing. The results were there to see during the Sri Lanka tour. As the CWG came along, she was ready. In the absence of key all-rounder Pooja Vastrakar, Renuka stepped up big time against Australia. She ran through their top-order, taking four wickets in a span of 13 deliveries. Although India lost the match, her 4/18 was one of the biggest positives for them.

"I worked on my swing as well. The more I am able to swing, the better it will help the team," said the 26-year-old after the match.

And she was right. Her inswing had a vital role to play on Friday - especially when Renuka swung one back into Tahlia McGrath and cleaned up the stumps - and would continue to do so in the coming games as India take on Pakistan in their next game Sunday.

From warming the bench in New Zealand during the World Cup to leading the pace attack in CWG has come a long way. "A person who was not given an opportunity in the World Cup is now opening the bowling. She is now given the new ball. It shows the growth of the player. And also the kind of confidence the captain and management has in her. That is only possible if the player would have developed," summed up Nooshin.

Sunita did not have the chance to see Renuka play in the World Cup. But watching her delivering for India on Friday, she'd have definitely smiled and felt proud of her daughter.

Sen & Co enter knockout round

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Chennai

INDIAN shuttlers entered the CWG with quite a reputation. Living up to their billing, they had made light work of Pakistan in their opening game (Group I) of the mixed team event in Birmingham on Friday. On Saturday, the theme remained the same.

Sri Lanka were at the receiving end on the day, as Indian shuttlers put up another handsome display to crush the Islanders 5-0. Indian shuttlers, in the process, booked a spot in the knockouts and will be determined to go all the way and retain the top prize.

With games coming thick and fast and individual events yet to begin, the Indian team shuffled players against Sri Lanka. It was veteran Ashwini Ponnappa and Satwiksairaj Rankireddy who took the court in the mixed doubles match. The duo are familiar to each other and initially seemed a bit rusty, but had no issues dispatching Sachin Dias and Thilini Hendahewa 21-14, 21-9.

While Kidambi Srikanth featured for India in the men's singles tie against Pakistan, it was Lakshya Sen's turn to take the court. The top-ranked male shuttler from India clearly seemed a little rusty, which was understandable given the fact that he was making a competitive action after a over a month's gap. In the first game, his rival Niluka Karunaratne, a World No 131, suprised many by putting up a strong show. But despite the margins being fine, in terms of score, Lakshya was unfazed and kept his calm to pocket the first game.

Lakshya Sen had to work hard in the first game in the men's singles tie | AP

The second game was a no contest as Lakshya raced to 21 points, leaving his helpless opponent stranded at 5.

Youngster Aakarshi Kashyap was in focus next. Given that she's in place of Saina Nehwal, who is not part of the team after missing out on national trials, Aakarshi has big shoes to fill. Aakarshi did more than enough on the day, dispatching Vidara Suhasni 21-3, 21-9 to help India seal the contest.

Men's doubles pair of Chirag Shetty and Sumit Reddy and women's doubles pair of Treesa Jolly and Gaytri Gopichand added shine to India's performance with an equally dominating output.

At the time of going to press, India were leading 1-0 against Australia in the third and final Group I contest thanks to Kidambi Srikanth's win.

Lovlina enters quarterfinals

Boxer Lovlina Borgohain put up a dominating show against New Zealand's Ariane Nicholson to advance to women's 70kg quarterfinals. Earlier, Mohammad Hussamuddin was too good for South Africa's Amzolele Dyeyi, winning the bout by 5-0 margin. Beginning his campaign in the 57kg category, Hussamuddin landed some telling hits on his opponent and never seemed to be in trouble.

IT'S 11.45 am on Saturday morning. In three hours and fifteen minutes, Magnus Carlsen will play his first game for Norway at the Olympiad. He's scheduled to face Uruguay's Georg Meier, who has an ELO rating of 2613. In most games, that would make him a favourite. Against Carlsen who has white pieces, it's a bit like having to survive 120 fourth innings overs batting against an all-time Indian spin attack in Indian conditions.

At 11.45 am, though, Carlsen is relaxed. He is executing one touch passes and back-heels with a football on a private beach.

****

There's seconds to go for Carlsen's match with Meier. The final call announcement has finished and the players have their game face on. Just when the Norwegian is all set to make his opening move, he spots a movement in his peripheral vision. One of the Kenyan players has come over to Norway's table. He wants a photograph. Or an autograph. Or both. It's hard to say. Carlsen, understandably, doesn't oblige.

But he cannot control the scrum of mediapersons and photographers next to him. They are all there to watch the greatest chess player (in terms of Elo rating), living or dead, make the first move. It's pawn to e4.

There's some 40 cameras going off at the same moment. At one point of time in the opening exchanges, his three teammates and their opponents in the Uruguayan team turn their heads to watch Carlsen. His opponent, Meier, is also watching him. Seven pairs of eyes watching and tracking the world champion, who's dressed black suit and black buckled formal shoes.

The word 'washing' has had a negative connotation attached to it ever since it was suffixed to sport. Sportswashing. Norway's team captain, Jon Kristian Haarr, uses 'washing' in a cooler context. Coolwashing. Chess memes, streamers, online chess... they have all contributed to coolwashing chess. He also mentions that Carlsen has contributed to this moment of coolwashing chess.

"He was born in 1990, I was born in 1992," Haarr says. "I remember him being very talented. I started playing chess before Magnus got really big and chess kind of got cool back in the geeky chess days. I mean chess is still geeky but it's got coolwashed."

Jon-Ludvig Hammer, who was one of Carlsen's seconds at the World Championship in Chennai in 2013, agrees. "We have regularly televised chess tournaments and Magnus can't walk anywhere without being recognized," Hammer, who is Norway's third board against Uruguay, says. "One proof of the popularity of chess is that we got a chess-themed pub in Oslo which has been well-visited and sees patrons challenging each other."

Being in hall one, you can see that popularity isn't just restricted to Norway. He's treated like a rockstar with everybody wanting a piece of him. When he landed in Chennai a few days ago, he was instantly mobbed. People are seeking autographs. Mediapersons, wanting a comment or two, have thrusted their big mics next to his face.

Haarr hasn't seen those videos but he isn't surprised. Tongue-in-cheek, he says he may have to play the role of bodyguard at the venue to protect his prized ward from being mobbed. "Worried," he says. "Sometimes, you got to play the role of bodyguard, you know. Scooch past people like... Mostly he can deal with it himself, but this is on another level than what I am used to back in Norway. He's definitely popular in Norway as well and people want to come and take a picture but yes, there are a couple more people here in India than in Norway so the swarms (of people), we are not so used to."

Perhaps, to avoid the swarm, Norway show up late. Very late. Uruguay, who are ready to go, are half-joking. "Maybe he's still preparing (for the match)." He turns up after 95 per cent of the other occupants are in. The other three Norwegians turn up later.

****

Norway is going through a dream phase of producing elite sportspersons. Erling Haaland. Karsten Warholm. Jacob Ingebrigsten. The winter Olympics team. Casper Ruud. Yet, Carlsen, on his own, has silently brought about a chess revolution in a country not really known for traditional chess prowess.

"Magnus was a capacitor for the popularity of chess in Norway," Haarr says. "Chess was on the main broadcast TV in Norway. They are sending the World Championships like Classical, Blitz and Rapid on the main station and lots of people watch it. People are looking at chess as entertainment. Many people have been influenced by Magnus and started playing because of him. We have seen several people GM norms and whatnot after he got into chess."

44 CHESS OLYMPIAD EXPRESS SPECIAL

At some level, he also wants to leave behind a legacy. In 2019, he founded — and funded — the opening of a chess club in Norway. Offerspill ('sacrificing play'). Haarr is its current general manager. "We started the club in 2019 and it rapidly grew to be the biggest club in Norway. In Norway, chess is not recognised as a sport by the Norwegian sports association so it doesn't get funding... currently we have 500 members (people can join with a small yearly fee).

The table next to Carlsen is occupied by Aryan Tari, the 23-year-old who was junior world champion in 2017. Tari, another member of the Offerspill chess club, is one of the handful of players who got his GM norms post-Carlsen.

There is also a fun side — coolwashing as Haarr refers to — to Carlsen. Sometimes, he turns up unannounced during Offerspill's over-the-board events. He has also played with some of the members of the public during these events. "Sometimes he just shows up (laughs) and people are surprised but it's usually a chill atmosphere."

But he's also been some sort of a controversial figure sometimes because he's sponsored by a gambling company and we have a gambling monopoly in Norway. So it's not all good or all bad, but he's definitely popular."

****

His Twitter bio is an accurate reflection of the two things he cares about. Chess and football. The second part of the bio reads: "Former (live) #1 Fantasy Premier League player". Haarr calls Carlsen a 'sports idiot'. "I know he watches a lot of football," he says. "He's a big sports idiot. He probably knows all the football players in so many of the leagues. He has an exceptional memory."

Hammer goes even further. "My impression is Magnus loves playing FPL not just for stress relief, but also because it's a great way of competing within something he's really passionate about, football."

After more than five hours, Carlsen prevails. When the news filters out that he's leaving, some 150 people form a queue outside one of the exit gates for an autograph. He leaves via another gate. People are racing across the lawns to get another glimpse of their hero. Their GOAT.

India B continue winning momentum on Day 2

On a day when there were a few surprising draws across the Indian boards, the young India B team in the Open category demolished Estonia 4-0. They are one of the outsiders for the tournament and they showed why, with all four players finishing their games in under four hours. They have won all eight of their games across two rounds.

Open: India A bt Moldova 3.5-0.5, India B bt Estonia 4-0, India C bt Mexico 2.5-1.5.

Women: India A bt Argentina 3.5-0.5. India B bt Latvia 3.5-0.5, India C bt Singapore 3-1.

Chahar back in India squad for Zimbabwe

GOMESH S @Chennai

INDIA pacer Deepak Chahar is all set to make a comeback as the Board of Control for Cricket announced the squad for the three-match ODI series in Zimbabwe. The 29-year-old injured his hamstring during the bilateral series against West Indies in February 2022 and has been out of action since. With over two months to go for the T20 World Cup in Australia, all eyes would be on Chahar in Zimbabwe as the pacer is a vital cog in India's new ball attack, especially in the shortest format. India will play three ODIs against the hosts starting from August 18.

Shikhar Dhawan would continue to lead the team in Zimbabwe as several key players of the side have not been included. Rohit Sharma and Rishabh Pant, who are currently playing in the Caribbean, along with the likes of Virat Kohli, Jasprit Bumrah who were rested for the West Indies series, are not in the squad. For Kohli, who's been struggling for form, this would be the fourth bilateral series he has been rested in 2022. The former India captain has played only four T20Is and eight ODIs this year. Although there is no information in the press release regarding the rest or dropping of players, all these key players, including Kohli, are expected to be in the T20I side that will take part in the Asia Cup that would be happening in the United Arab Emirates from August 29.

Rahul Tripathi, who was called up for the Ireland tour but was left out of the subsequent England and West Indies series, is back in the side. In the bowling department, Washington Sundar, who's currently playing for Lancashire in County Cricket, will be making a comeback into the Indian team for the first time since his call-up to the South Africa tour earlier this year. Spinner Kuldeep Yadav, who was injured just before the South Africa series at home, is also back in the squad. The pace attack comprises of Chahar, Mohammed Siraj, Avesh Khan, Prasidh Krishna and Shardul Thakur.

Squad: Shikhar Dhawan (C), Ruturaj Gaikwad, Shubman Gill, Deepak Hooda, Rahul Tripathi, Ishan Kishan (wk), Sanju Samson (wk), Washington Sundar, Shardul Thakur, Kuldeep Yadav, Axar Patel, Avesh Khan, Prasidh Krishna, Mohammed Siraj, Deepak Chahar.
